HOUND RESCUED BOY ONCE

Youth Almost Loses Life Saving Dog Trapped on Stone Mountain

By PAUL JONES

Sonny Wells paid an old debt to dogdom Monday, and he almost paid with his life.

When Sonny was a kid, an old hound dog rescued him from drowning in a pond near Stone Mountain. The youth vowed he would never forget it. He didn't. Monday, when he rescued a dog trapped on the steep face of Stone Mountain.

Sunday, thousands of visitors at Stone Mountain spotted the dog just above Robert E. Lee's head, 500 feet up on the steep side of the mountain. Sonny heard of it. The 21-year-old ex-GI got his rope, and set out to rescue the dog. When he got started, though, it was getting dark, and he had to try again Monday.

How the dog got there, nobody knows for sure, but in some manner, she slipped over the edge of the steep face. A long pipe running along the mountain side, some of the equipment left from the last attempt to build the memorial, had caught the dog in her fall, and with feet on the pipe and back against the mountain, the dog held her tenuous position through more than 24 hours.

Sonny scaled the mountain again Monday, and with the aid of two helpers, Moses F. Flowers and Walter Ashe, he dropped down 700 feet along the steep side, using spikes left in the memorial work. Half way down he took off his shoes to keep from slipping and his feet almost became numb in the blistering wind. He cut deep gashes in his heels as he slipped twice, hanging on each time to one of the spikes.

As he came within 50 feet of the dog, he saw he had undertaken a man's size job. The dog was standing on the metal pipe, only two inches thick. The pipe was barely large enough for Sonny to walk on with his heels. He turned, braced his back against the mountain and made his way, side stepping, toward the dog. "She began to whimper and cry," Sonny said after he came down. "I couldn't have turned around then."

"When I picked her up she lapped my face and tears came into her eyes and she whimpered low."

Sonny and the dog made their way back along the narrow catwalk and then up the almost perpendicular incline to where his aides had stopped along the mountainside. Flowers and Ashe threw Sonny the rope and he tied a noose around the dog's neck. She was pulled back to safety and Sonny followed.

Nearly an hour later, the dog had a big meal of chicken leftovers, donated by the inn-keeper at the base of the mountain and when she was through, she lapped Sonny's face in a big "thank you" swipe. Said Sonny: "She's just an old hound dog, ya know, but she's still man's best friend."

It was apparent the feeling was mutual.

And not even Sonny could recall ever having seen the dog before, and no one there knew who its owner was.

Youth Killed, One Hurt As Scooters Hit Truck

Four 16-year-old boys, riding two motor scooters toward Peachtree Creek on a Monday afternoon fishing expedition, crashed into a truck near the intersection of Lullwater and North Decatur Roads, killing one rider and breaking the left leg of another.

The other two boys were uninjured, DeKalb police reported.

Perry McWilliams, of 860 Virgil Street, N. E., is the dead boy and Emory F. Hester, of 847 Lake Avenue, N. E., received the broken leg. The boys on the second scooter—Clifton Larrimore, of 1017 Euclid Avenue, N. E., and Robert Thompson, of 957 Euclid Avenue, N. E., escaped without injuries.

McWilliams was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon D. McWilliams, of the Virgil Street address. He was a cousin of Harry McWilliams, motorcycle patrolman who was killed two months ago near the same spot in a collision between his motorcycle and an automobile.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Wednesday at the chapel of J. Austin Dillon, with the Rev. Paul Meigs officiating. Burial will be in Roseland Cemetery.

Besides his parents, McWilliams is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Norma Jacobs, Mrs. Nora Wooster, both of Atlanta, and Mrs. Kathryn Combs, of Stone Mountain; and four brothers, R. W., C. H., J. D., and G. D. McWilliams, Jr., all of Atlanta.

According to T. T. Wright and C. W. Austin, DeKalb County Patrolmen, the accident happened this way:

John Lumpkin, Negro, of 985 Connally Street, S. E., was driving his truck south on Lullwater Road when, near North Decatur Road, he saw two scooters, one behind the other, going north on Lullwater Road. Lumpkin pulled his truck over to the side of the road and stopped.

McWilliams, driving the first scooter, lost control and ran into the truck. The second scooter, driven by Larrimore, then crashed into the wreckage of the first scooter.

The patrolmen called an ambulance for McWilliams and Hester. They made no complaint against Lumpkin.

Ultimatum Gives Jews Seven Days To Cooperate in Terrorist Roundup

JERUSALEM, Palestine, Feb. 3 (UP)—British High Commissioner Sir Alan Cunningham, in an unprecedented ultimatum, Monday night gave Palestine Jews seven days in which to co-operate with British authorities in "bringing to justice the members of terrorist groups."

It was indicated the Jewish Agency and Vaad Leumi—the National Council of Palestine Jews—would reject the ultimatum and accept its alternative dissolution of the Agency, martial law and a ruthless military campaign to stamp out the Irgun Zvai Leumi and Stern underground groups.

Every preparation for martial law was being made.

Evacuation of approximately 2,000 families of Britons in Palestine continued at urgent speed.

". . . the Covernment repeatedly has warned the leaders of the Jewish Agency of the dangers of the growth of terrorism and the disastrous consequences which, unless checked, this would bring to the Jewish people themselves," the ultimatum said.

". . . the Jewish Agency now openly has refused its co-operation with the Government in the matter.

"I am now to invite your attention to the extreme gravity of the situation . . . and ask you to state categorically and at once whether the Agency and Vaad Leumi are prepared within seven days to call upon the Jewish community to lend their aid to the Government by co-operation with the police and armed forces in bringing to justice the members of terrorist groups."

Key figure in the crisis was Dov Gruner, member of the Irgunists, sentenced to death as a terrorist.

He was to have hanged a week ago. He was given a respite when his lawyer appealed. He later withdrew the appeal. Monday Gruner's lawyers asked a formal stay of execution. Chief Justice Sir William Fitzgerald of the High Court rejected it. British authorities said that Gruner probably would not be executed Tuesday—as reportedly scheduled—despite this rejection. Feb. 13 was mentioned unofficially as a possible date.

Irgun has threatened vengeance if Gruner is executed.

Herbert Jenkins Elected Chief of Atlanta Police

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Fulton County Police Chief Herbert Jenkins, 39, has been elected by City Council as Chief of the Atlanta Police Department, succeeding the late Chief M. A. Hornsby. Jenkins received 12 votes while his only opponent, Asst. City Police Chief G. Neal Ellis, mustered five. Only one member of Council—Councilman Cecil Hester—was absent.

Following Council's action Monday afternoon, Jenkins declared he would be "proud and honored to accept the new assignment," and Fulton Commissioner Charlie Brown said the county would release him immediately to assume his duties.

The new city police chief was granted a leave of absence from the Atlanta department on Jan. 9 to become head of the county police.

Meet Chief Jenkins in Fact and Photos—Page 8.

Those voting for Jenkins were Drennon, Ailor, Gilliam, Evans, Donaldson, Field, Knight, Marler, Cawthon, White, Huie, and Haire. Those casting their ballots for Ellis were Moseley, Jackson, Allen, Lindsey and Bell. Ellis called Jenkins to congratulate him on his election and to promise co-operation.

Councilman John T. Marler, Vice-Chairman of the Police Committee, said that group unanimously recommended Jenkins in a special meeting.

Mayor Hartsfield commended Council for the election of Jenkins, and lauded and thanked the Fulton Commission for agreeing to release him to assume his duties.

Brown said he did not yet know whom the Commission would elect to fill the post vacated by Jenkins, but indicated that the matter will be considered at an early date. Commissioner Clarence Duncan, chairman of the Police Committee, is out of the City and is expected back today.

During the deliberations, the Council paused to pay tribute to Hornsby, who died suddenly late Friday, and passed resolutions which were ordered into the minutes, with copies to be sent members of the family.

The Council also:

1. Empowered Mayor Hartsfield to sign contracts with Robert & Company, Inc., Engineers, to make detailed surveys and engineering plans for the Techwood-Bartow-Chapel Street viaduct project, the first major traffic development projected from the joint $40,400,000 Atlanta-Fulton County bond issue for postwar improvements. The improvement will be west of and parallel to Spring Street and will relieve congestion by providing a new north-south artery.

2. Agreed to sell approximately 12 acres including buildings of the 43-acre Battle Hill Sanatorium site to the Fulton-DeKalb County Hospital Authority for $10,000. The Authority plans to lease the buildings to private welfare corporations for use as convalescent homes for the chronically ill of white and Negro races.

3. Confirmed Mayor Hartsfield's re-appointment of Walter S. McBeal, Jr., Claude T. Grizzard and L. J. Cassels for new two-year terms as members of the City Planning Commission.

4. Extended non-parking on both sides of Peachtree Street from Cain to Baker on recommendation of Council's Police Committee. The new stretch is two blocks long and will be barred between the hours of 7 a. m. and 6 p. m.

IN COMPARISON WITH POLAND

Britain Defends Georgia

LONDON, Feb. 3—(UP)—The British Government went on record Monday to deny that the recent Polish election might be likened to those in the State of Georgia.

Christopher P. Mayhew, Foreign Under-Secretary, was detailing a list of alleged election abuses practiced during the recent voting in Poland when Thomas Driberg, left-wing labor member of Parliament asked:

"Are you aware that the account you gave of this election sounds like the account of any election in the State of Georgia, U. S. A.?"

Mayhew replied: "I think there are millions of people in Europe who would regard the American degree of personal liberty as a great blessing."

His remarks drew loud cheers from the House.

Wants Teachers' Raise To Be Full 50 Percent

Sen. Everett Millican, Atlanta, Fifty-second District, announced plans Monday to prohibit local school systems from decreasing their contributions to teachers' pay checks as the State increases its participation in this fund.

Millican said some local school systems pared their portion of teachers' salary funds as the State increased its share, causing the present teachers' pay raise actually to amount to much less than 50 percent.

The law prohibiting this will be attached as an amendment to the appropriations bill when it is voted upon by the Senate, Millican explained. He proposed to withhold additional State money for teachers from systems that cut their participation in the salary funds.

Georgia teachers receive a basic salary from the State plus varying amounts from local county and city governments.

Millican's remarks were brought about by the passage of legislation affecting Georgia schools. The legislation included establishment of a twelfth grade for all school systems, effective July 1, and to be paid for with State funds, and the removal of the ceiling on salaries for county school superintendents.

The county school superintendent bill, if concurred in by the House and signed by the Governor, will permit the superintendents to receive funds in proportion to their teaching certificates. Heretofore, these superintendents have received no more than $100 a month from the State no matter how high their qualifications.

The Senate also passed the bill requiring the licensing of practical nurses.

Primary Hearing Barred To Negroes

By JOHN COURIC

Dominating initial Senate hearings on his proposed white primary bill, Former House Speaker Roy V. Harris Monday denied charges that he aspires to "Statewide political dictatorship" but admitted the companion bill proposing a general election registration fee is a poll tax.

Harris, chief lieutenant of Herman Talmadge and ex-legislator from Richmond County, spoke for one hour and 40 minutes at the Special Judiciary Committee hearing. Negroes were barred.

Re-enactment of the "registration fee" was forecast by Harris, who emphasized that this fee would be for General Election voting and would go into governmental coffers and not into the Democratic Party's purse.

He explained the party's tie-in with the registration fee when he pointed out party officials would obtain their basic list of voters from State registrars.

A bill providing for $1 registration fee for the General Election every two years is under legislative consideration at present.

Georgia's poll tax was repealed in 1945, in the administration of Gov. Ellis Arnall.

Harris scoffed at charges he was seeking to become "political dictator of Georgia" through the White Primary Bill and claimed his only interest in the legislation is to help Gov. Herman Talmadge.

The Rev. W. C. Moseley, retired Atlanta minister, joining Harris in advocating passage, declared:

"The Negroes will treat us with respect if we treat them with respect. But they are a different people and they are not competent to govern themselves."

Meanwhile, ministerial groups in Atlanta, Macon and Columbus held meetings Monday to discuss the proposed bill denying Negroes the right to vote in Georgia primaries. Macon and Columbus ministers voted opposition to the bill.

The special Judiciary Committee during a five-minute recess of the Senate session Monday decided not to hear Negroes. Chairman J. B. G. Logan, of Homer, 33rd District, announced the Committee's decision before the Senate and said the ruling was voted to "prevent mixing of the races."

He said Negroes would be allowed to express themselves through written communications.

The written report of the Committee follows:

"Due to the importance of the legislation and the limited time allowed for the public meeting and hearings the hearings shall be limited to white citizens of the State and any other group are re-

Hamilton To Accept Revenues

State Treasurer George B. Hamilton agreed Monday to accept tax money from Georgia's Revenue Department—but reiterated his refusal to recognize Talmadge-appointed Commissioner Charles Redwine as a fiscal agent of the State.

In a letter to Redwine—whom he studiously refrained from addressing by title—the Treasurer returned $4,749,886.87 in uncashed checks with the suggestion that deposits be made directly into Treasury accounts, instead of by check.

Alternatively, said Hamilton, the Treasury would receive cash.

"Either or both of these methods of payment may be employed at your discretion," he told Redwine. By doing so, he continued, "it will then become unnecessary for me to pass upon your right to draw checks on accounts of the Department of Revenue and to transfer by check these funds to me as State Treasurer."

Redwine declared that in his opinion Hamilton's action eliminates a lawsuit scheduled to be heard in Fulton Superior Court Thursday. This suit—the first of six tests involving the gubernatorial issue—was filed by Redwine to force Hamilton to accept revenue collections.

"Since the State Treasurer is accepting the revenue collections, there is nothing to law about," Redwine commented.

Redwine said he is taking the money to the bank and depositing it, and delivering the deposit slips to Hamilton. This was one of the means suggested by Hamilton.

Explaining his action, Hamilton said the letter did not constitute retirement from his refusal to deal with Redwine as Commissioner of Revenue, and emphasized that it did not unfreeze State funds for operation of departments where HONGKONG, Tuesday, Feb. 4—(AP)—The river boat Saigon, plying between Hongkong and Canton, caught fire at her wharf Monday morning with estimates of the dead ranging from 40 to 200.

The China Mail said it had learned 40 were killed in the blaze while the Chinese Press estimates deaths at 200. The Chinese Mail said 40 bodies had been counted in the charred hold of the 1,700-ton vessel.

PORTAL SUIT JUDGE ASKS:

How Slow Do Workers Go to Work?

DETROIT, Feb. 3—(AP)—A Federal judge scratched his head angrily Monday and conceded the average worker moves slower going into a factory in the morning than he does leaving at night.

And, since portal-to-portal pay became an issue, some of them are slower than ever, the Court implied.

These observations featured nearly four hours of testimony in the Mt. Clemens Pottery Company case, forerunner of nearly $5,000,000,000 in portal pay claims.

Federal Judge Frank A. Picard, directed by the Supreme Court to assess portal time in the case and decide whether it was trifling, sought to determine how long it took the pottery employees to walk from their time clock to their work bench.

The answers alternately exasperated and amused him.

Testified five former employees:

The plant was laid out so that they were forced to pick their way around empty wooden crates and past freight carriers, stepping gingerly over slippery footbridges and carefully ducking beneath menacing overhead pipes.

All this, they said, required up to 20 minutes a day.

Replied a company executive:

The employee had a clear, unobstructed path to their work benches, one that compared not unfavorably with a sidewalk in normal weather.

It wouldn't take an employee over eight minutes a day to cover the distance, he estimated.

Attorney Edward Lamb pointed out some of his plaintiffs were "streamlined" and some were "middle aged women" and the latter traveled more slowly.

Commented Judge Picard, who heard some of the same witnesses in 1942 when portal time was not an issue.

"All these people were streamlined racers, according to the plaintiffs when you were here before and now they're not so streamlined. And I wouldn't be surprised if the defendant found them not so streamlined then and find them more so now."

Mrs. Adrienne Beyer, 36, testified she proceeded to her bench at one-half of one mile per hour.

James D. Doll, son of the Company president, said he covered the same route at better than three miles per hour. And at night, while he was measuring it, a lot of the employees outspeeded him, he added.

"The court almost can take judicial notice of the fact they walk faster going out than in," Judge Picard conceded dryly.

The five employees refused to walk a measured 100 feet outside the courtroom, although the Company attorneys suggested this as a means of testing their rate of speed.

Doll said he would, gladly.

Roared Judge Picard angrily:

"We tried to do this right in your plant, and you wouldn't let the plaintiff's witness come on the

County Unit for General Elections Is Approved by House Committee

By M. L. ST. JOHN

One House committee has approved a bill to extend the County Unit System into the general election in choosing Georgia's Governor, and another gave approval to a measure calling for a $1 fee for registration of every voter.

Constitutional Amendments Committee No. 1 voted Monday afternoon to ask the House to pass this bill.

The same committee also recommended passage of a measure that would prevent the General Assembly from electing a Governor in the future. This bill provides that in the case a Governor-Elect dies, the Legislature shall call a special election between 30 and 60 days, and the incumbent Governor shall serve until this special election. If the General Assembly is not in session when the Governor-Elect dies, the measure provides that it convene in special session to call a special election.

A bill establishing a $1 voters' registration fee and requiring persons to register every two years was approved by the House Committee on the State of Republic, following a hearing.

This bill would abolish all existing registration lists in the general electon and require everyone to reregister, Sen. Alex Weaver,

OCCULT DABBLERS TEST CHINESE LORE

Eggs Stand on End for Magic Moment

By WALTER RUNDLE

SHANGHAI, China, Tuesday, Feb. 4—(UP)—Eggs stood on end by the dozens in Shanghai Monday as dabblers in the occult successfully tested a gem of ancient Chinese lore.

Legend has it that eggs will stand on end—either end—at the moment of the beginning of the mystic season of Lih-Chun, the Chinese lunar Spring, which came 15 minutes before midnight.

So many people had bought eggs for the test that the price jumped to 600 Chinese dollars per egg.

This correspondent saw eggs balanced on mirrors, plates and polished table tops—and photographs were taken to prove it.

"Operation eggstand" took place at the home of Mimmy Wei, Ministry of Information Office Director, instead of at the City Temple as scheduled, because of a heavy snow. The change of plans apparently made no difference to the eggs, which teetered on end in defiance of any laws written by Sir Isaac Newton.

At Nanking Pual Feng, editor of the English department of the Nanking Central News, reported eggs were standing on end in that city. Similar reports came from elsewhere in China.

A few minutes after the traditional "magic" moment telephone calls flooded the Shanghai Bureau of United Press as foreign residents called to report that eggs were standing in living rooms, dining rooms and yards.

It is also part of the lore that goose down—now selling for 1,000 Chinese dollars per ounce—would rise from the bottom of a buried bamboo tube with the coming of Lih-Chun.

This correspondent braved the bitter cold and falling snow to bury a down-loaded tube. Returning later I found it still on the bottom, concluding: (1) the down had not risen because of high humidity, or (2) it had risen and then fallen at the magic moment while I was inside watching the eggs.

Knowledge of U. S. Atomic Secrets Shown by Reds, Baruch Quote Says

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—(AP)—Bernard M. Baruch reportedly told Senators Monday there is evidences that Russia has peneterated to some extent the secrecy wall this country has erected around the production of atomic bombs.

Baruch's testimony, given in a closed session of the Senate Atomic Committee, was summarized by one Committee member and confirmed by another as indicating the Soviets had gained access to some highly secret information but apparently did not know exactly what it meant or how to use it.

No member would comment publicly on what went on after the Committee closed its doors to the public following a hearing in which Baruch blamed scientists for "lambasting" the Army into making public in 1945 the Smyth report. This report, prepared by Henry De Wolf Smyth, contained data on atomic energy. David E. Lilienthal, nominated to be Chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, has criticized the release of the report.

Baruch, who resigned recently as American representative on the United Nations Atomic Commission, could not be reached immediately for comment on the reports of the secret session.

Baruch was said to have testified that the form of certain questions put by the Soviets in United Nations discussion of international atomic controls indicated there had been leaks in the American security wall.

In one instance, it was said, the Russians apparently came into possession of a code word used by the Americans but showed by their statements that they failed to grasp its significance.

Earlier in his public testimony, Baruch said he agreed with Chairman Lilienthal that publication of the Smyth report had made it more difficult for this country to keep its secrets.

Noting that Canada had "made some discoveries in plutonium," Brauch mentioned the arrests of Soviet spies in that country. He indicated belief that the Russians obtained some of their information from Canada.

The Senate committee now is considering whether to recommend Senate confirmation of the commission nominations, as well as the appointment of a general manager.

For this latter post, Baruch left little doubt that he wished President Truman had chosen Maj. Gen. (retired) T. F. Farrell, New York State engineer, who served as No. 2 man to Groves during the war. The President has nominated for the job Carroll Wilson, 36-year-old former associate of Dr. Vannevar Bush, scientist active in the atomic development.

Sen. Edwin C. Johnson, Democrat, Colorado, brought up Farrell's name after he had asked Baruch to describe the sort of General Manager the witness believed is needed for the commission.

Baruch said he couldn't think of a better man for the job than Farrell.

Naval Hero Mitscher Dies; Blandy Is Named Successor

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 3—(AP)—Adm. Marc A. Mitscher, who scourged the Japanese with spectacular carrier-based airblows, died quietly in his sleep Monday at the Norfolk Naval Hospital, eight days after he was stricken with a heart attack on his 60th birthday.

The death of the Commander-in-Chief of the Atlantic Fleet was announced by the Fifth Naval District shortly after 8 a. m. A hospital bulletin said the "special nurse on duty reported that the Admiral had been sleeping quietly but shortly after 1 a. m. he ceased breathing. The time was officially reported as 1:20 a. m. and the cause of death was "thrombosis, coronary artery."

In Washington, the Navy announced Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, ordnance expert and director of the atomic bomb tests in the Pacific last Summer, would succeed Mitscher in command of the Atlantic Fleet. Promotion of Blandy to full admiral is expected to follow his assignment as fleet commander.

Expressing regret at the Pacific war hero's death, Sec. of the Navy Forrestal said in Washington "the place he occupies in the hearts of those who served under him, officers and men, is a firmer basis of tribute than any that words could frame."

He added: "The United States Navy, with sorrow and pride, sends its deep sympathy to Mrs. Marc A. Mitscher."

Mrs. Mitscher was at their home here when the admiral died.

Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, Chief of Naval Operations, said at Norfolk, "the nation has lost a great leader. I always had a sense of security and comfort when Admiral Mitscher was the leader of Task Force 58 against the Japanese. I knew that what had to be done would be done in full measure. He needed no detailed instructions. All he needed was opportunity, and he made the most of every opportunity."

BEFORE HOUSE

Bill Would Aid As Fire Curb

A bill designed to prevent another disaster such as the Winecoff Hotel fire was introduced in the House Monday.

The measure requires all hotels to be equipped with sprinkler systems, alarms and fire escapes, all of which must be approved by City or County fire officials. It also provides for fire inspections.

If a hotel does not correct flaws within 10 days after receiving notice from the fire inspector, the owner and operator are subject to prosecution by the solicitor general.

The bill describes a hotel as any building with a minimum of two stories and 12 guest rooms.

The measure, of which Rep. Robert Addleton, of Spalding County is author, was referred to the Special Judiciary Committee.

The Jefferson Civic Club of East Point recently adopted a resolution "welcoming the annexation of Egan Park," according to Pres. J. S. Crespi. The Club also passed a resolution "condemning the operation of slot machines" in East Point.

DEATH SENTENCE TO BE DEMANDED FOR PRISONER TAMPERING WITH CAR

Although his only offense was to try to break into an automobile early Monday morning at the corner of Eighth and Juniper Streets, and when discovered, he unsuccessfully resisted arrest, the death sentence will be asked for a prisoner now confined at police headquarters.

Radio Patrolmen O. T. Jones and C. F. Sanders, who took the culprit into custody, said they will ask for the death sentence.

"We will not be satisfied with anything less than life imprisonment," they said as they carefully guarded their prisoner.

On the police docket, the prisoner is registered with three names. They are:

CIO Secretary Calls For Fleming's Ouster

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—(UP)—CIO Secretary James B. Carey Monday demanded the ouster of Temporary Controls Director Philip B. Fleming, and told the Senate Banking Committee that a general rent boost might engulf the country in a new, economy-blasting strike flood.

He said Fleming's assumption of blame for last week's "comedy of errors," which almost resulted in a nationwide 10 percent rent hike, was "sufficient to call for his resignation."

Testifying as the Committee prepared to go to work on a number of higher rent proposals, Carey contended that a general increase, "coming at this time when labor is attempting to work out harmonious agreements with management, will have the gravest effect."

Latest suggested answer to the problem came from newly-elected Sen. Ralph E. Flanders, Republican, Vermont. He introduced a bill to boost rents 20 percent within 16 months, at the rate of five percent every four months, and end all Federal controls July 1, 1948. Five other Republicans want Congress to grant a 15 percent across-the-board increase immediately.

Flanders, a member of the Banking Committee, viewed his plan as "a universal remedy—a patented, double-section thing that does everything."

Besides permitting step-by-step increases up to 20 percent, based on the countrywide Jan. 1, 1947, rent ceiling, his bill would empower the States to enact legislation to take over controls from the Federal Government. Sen. Homer E. Capehart, Republican, Indiana, is leading a GOP drive to put the problem in the laps of State Legislatures.

"My proposal will protect the interests of low income groups now paying rent, stimulate building and remodeling, and liquidate rent control," Flanders said. "It is, in my judgment, the only plan so far put forth which will serve all these purposes."

He condemned the immediate 15 percent increase plan on the ground it would "lead, with some shadow of excuse, to putting renewed pressure behind the demands for a general wage increase, thus again setting in motion an inflation spiral which in the end benefits no one. This must not be allowed to take place."

Carey, testifying after spokesmen for the country's landlords assailed rent control as a giant "octopus" strangling new home construction, said he was "terribly shocked" by Fleming's argument in behalf of an across-the-board increase as a means of easing his Agency's present administrative burdens. Fleming said last week that he felt justified in ordering a countrywide boost until he learned that President Truman was firmly opposed.

The CIO official accused Fleming of having measured the controversial issue solely from a "convenience" standpoint, instead of carrying out his job of "maintaining the law."

Carey refused to be drawn into a discussion with Sen. Joseph C. McCarthy, Republican, Wisconsin, over suggestions that landlords be permitted to oust "undesirable tenants" and replace them with veterans' families. Carey termed the idea "a political question" and said it would be "an attempt to use the veteran to destroy rent control."

Slavs Inciting War, Greeks Tell UNO Body

ATHENS, Feb. 3—(AP)—The Greek Government formally charged before the inquiry commission of the United Nations Security Council today that Yugoslavia had founded a "National Front" organization at Skoplje to incite warfare inside Greece as part of a three-phase plan to lay claim to Greek Macedonia.

The United States, through its representative, Mark Ethridge, challenged an attempt by Albania, Yugoslavia and Ekia to keep the commission from entering those three nations.

Alexis Kyrou formally presented Greece's complaint that her Soviet-supported neighbors were fomenting near civil war in the north. He also made these additional charges:

1. Albania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria, "by common agreement," established the Bulkjes camp in Yugoslavia to serve as an "academy of war" for guerrilla fighters in Northern Greece. He said 2,000 Greeks taken as hostages by the extreme left wing in the 1944-45 revolution were held at Bulkjes.

2. Guerrilla operations inside Greece were being directed by "foreign staff officers" operating from Skoplje, capital of Yugoslav Macedonia and 85 miles from the Greek border on the traditional Vardar River invasion route.

3. Skoplje was headquarters also of the NOF (Narold Osvoboditelen or National Liberation Front) founded by Yugoslav authorities to incite "a few thousand Greek citizens in Central Macedonia who speak Slav dialects to take up arms against Greek authorities in order to help swell the ranks of guerrillas."

EMBARRASSING HISTORY LESSON

Boston, 0; Indian, 100

BOSTON, Feb. 3—(AP)—An Indian Princess from Old Town, Maine, gave the State of Massachusetts a history lesson Monday—and thereby saved $25.

The visitor, Princess Goldenrod, had been told she would have to obtain a $25 peddler's license to sell basketry and Indian souvenirs at a sportsman's show in Mechanics Building.

Notified to appear at the Statehouse, she had a ready answer. An old treaty between her tribe and the Massachusetts Bay Colony, she said, gave the Indians freedom from all State taxes and license fees.

State clerks conceded the point but noted she was not from Massachusetts but from Maine.

The Princess had another answer. When the treaty was drawn, she said, Maine was a part of Massachusetts, and when the two became separate States each assumed the obligation to the tribe. That point was well taken, also.

Says Vets Have Good GI Home Loan Records

Ed W. Hiles, Executive Vice President of the Georgia Savings and Loan League, Inc., Monday denied rumors veteran borrowers are not repaying their GI home loans.

He pointed out that eight loan associations in Atlanta had made more than 1,500 loans to veterans to buy or build homes. "Of these 1,500 loans," said Hiles, "only 10 are as much as 30 days in arrears, and none are as much as 60 days in arrears."

British Army Cut By Half in Greece

ATHENS, Greece, Feb. 3—(UP) Great Britain will reduce the strength of her army in Greece from approximately 40,000 to 20,000 men within the next few weeks "in accordance with decisions made some time ago," the British Embassy announced Monday night.

Diplomatic quarters expressed belief that behind the announcement might lie an agreement by the Allied Big Three putting Greece definitely in the sphere of Great Britain and the United States. This would imply a gradual lessening of "guerrilla" activities in areas of Greece bordering on the Soviet-satellite countries of Albania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria.

The first move to reduce British troop strength was made in September when veterans of one division were sent home. It was made known at that time that further reductions would be made when the situation justified them.

Expert Here To Judge 'Live' Camellia Hats

By DORIS LOCKERMAN

A tiny French-looking woman with a black fringe of bangs and fabulous chunks of gold jewelry ringing her neck and arms, is in Atlanta to judge the Camellia Show's "live" camellia hats at the Georgian Terrace Hotel today . . . and nobody should be better qualified to size them up.

R. T. Wilcox

R. TURNER WILCOX (sounds like a utility executive), is the virtual five-foot shelf of reference to all novices in dress design and historical costumery. All beginners know her queenly courtesans and viril courtiers, in "The Modes of Costume" and "The Modes of Hats and Hairdresses," as well as they know the Dick and Betty duo of first grade book fame.

This may add a human line to her texts: Mrs. Wilcox is an artist who means every line she draws. She hopes readers can copy the clothes she depicts. She is a fine seamstress herself, makes all her own clothes and saves a great deal of money so she can spend it on terrific accessories. Her colors are black, yellow and red, and she hasn't changed for years because it would cost too much to accessorize another hue. Even her lingerie is yellow (she dyes it from white things).

Mrs. Wilcox

Her name used to be Ruth Wilcox, but she changed it to the present title when her daughter, Ruth, began to cop big prizes for herself and stubbornly refused to switch her given name. Mrs. Wilcox was the first editor of "Women's Wear," the daily newspaper that is a practical handbook of the merchandising trade. Her husband, likewise an artist, is with her here. They are visiting an old friend, Mrs. Roy Minier, on Argonne Drive.

Orsborne, who coined the phrase "The bulldozers of evangelism," for his Army, sold Atlanta his current crusade under the label "Fighting Faith," a few months ago.

"A" FOR EATING—A majority of the City schools did not qualify for "A" lunch room ratings during the recent Health Department rating campaign. The principal reason for their failure to qualify was their lack of hot water facilities to meet specifications for proper sterilization of utensils. That situation is changing. Mrs. Berma J. Abercrombie, head dietition for the City Schools, who supervises luncheons for 40,000 children every day, says 10 of the schools have already installed new hot water equipment, and the others will have theirs as soon as workers can make the installations. There are no "C" school cafeterias, Mrs. Abercrombie says, and only three Negro schools without lunchrooms. Those three do not have a spare inch of space for dining.

General Depot Center For Army Supplies

Distribution of Army supplies for Southeastern States and Caribbean Stations has been centralized at the Atlanta General Depot, under a previously announced "new testing policy."

The new procedure, according to Col. R. B. Thornton, Depot Commanding Officer, supplants the previous method, under which each of the technical services operated its own depots and supply system. All material except specialized equipment for the Army Air Forces, perishable foods, petroleum products and ammunition will be handled through the Atlanta depot.

Recovers 59 Pct. Of Stolen Goods

The monthly crime report, issued at police headquarters, reveals that during January, the value of property stolen in Atlanta was $148,777, of which the police recovered $89,261. This makes the percentage of recovery 59 per cent. The average rate of recovery usually runs about 70 percent.

Other items on the list include: Homicides, six, with three cleared up; one unsolved criminal assault; 38 robberies, with four cleared up; 27 aggravated assault cases, with 19 cleared up; 179 burglaries, with 47 cleared up.

Theosophical Leader To Speak Wednesday

James S. Perkins, National President of the Theosophical Society in America, will give a public lecture at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the Blue Flame Room of the Atlanta Gas Light Company at 243 Peachtree St. His subject will be "Open Immortal Eyes."

Food Ordinance Up Tomorrow

City Council's Health Committee will hold a public hearing beginning at 2 p. m. Wednesday on a proposed ordinance to establish a grading system for 1,700 Atlanta food-handling establishments other than hotels, restaurants, etc.

Councilman Howard Haire, Committee Chairman, said the date of the hearing was set Wednesday so that grocers, meat market operators and others engaged in the handling of food for human consumption could better attend. Most retail stores close Wednesday afternoon.

At present, the City has established a grading system for restaurants and other food and drink dispensing establishments, and the new effort is to expand the inspection service to include all types and kinds of places handling food.

Solon Seeks Court Recall Of Pay Suit

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—(AP)—A proposal by Rep. Walter, Democrat, Pennsylvania, that the Supreme Court recall the master portal pay case and "lay down a clear-cut yardstick" for such claims marked the start Monday of House hearings on the $5,000,000,000 problem.

A Supreme Court decision involving employees of the Mt. Clemens, Mich., Pottery Company has led to the filing of some $5,000,000,000 in portal suits.

"I think," Walter declared, "the Supreme Court ought to recall that case, assume jurisdiction again, and lay down a clear-cut yardstick. The Supreme Court would be derelict in its duty to the people generally if it did not do that."

He is a member of a House judiciary subcommittee which began hearings on bills to outlaw the claims with a plea from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States for fast action.

Milton A. Smith, assistant general counsel of the Chamber, said portal suits "pose a threat of bankruptcy to concerns which are the backbone of the American economic system."

Charged With Tax Evasion

Daniel Barr Anderson, of Blue Ridge, charged on a criminal information warrant signed by U. S. Atty. J. Ellis Mundy with evasion of 1943 and 1944 Federal income tax, Monday made bond of $2,000 before U. S. Commissioner David J. Meyerhardt here.

Two Suits Here Seek $78,500

Two civil suits asking a total of $78,500 damages have been transferred from Fulton Superior Court to the U. S. District Court here.

In one, Mrs. Douglas L. Herrien, of 1803 Meadowale Ave., N. E., is seeking $75,000 damages from the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, charging the Corporation's "alleged negligence" was responsible for the death of her husband in a July 8, 1946, Constellation plane crash.

The other suit, filed by Mrs. Nora Henry, of 1300 Bankhead Ave., seeks $3,500 damages from Sears, Roebuck and Company for injuries allegedly received by the defendant through alleged negligence of the Company.

15,000 Strike As Nuernberg Protests Bomb

NUERNBERG, Germany, Feb. 3 (UP)—A six-hour general strike closed shops and halted transportation in Nuernberg Monday as 15,000 workers protested Saturday night's bombing of the office of the president of a tribunal trying Baron Franz von Papen on denazification charges.

Trade union officials with the Military Government's tacit consent ordered the work stoppage beginning at noon Monday. Throngs of demonstrators braved the cold to jam Market Square, where Trade Union Congress leaders addressed an hour-long meeting.

The strikers passed resolutions criticizing the Bavarian Government for not carrying out the denazification program more rapidly and efficiently and offered a 50,000-reichsmark ($5,000) reward for the apprehension of the saboteurs.

Congress Chairman Hagen Lorentz told the crowd that "persons found guilty by a denazification court should be sent to labor camps," and the crowd voiced approval. Other union leaders shouted that those responsible for the bombing should be placed in concentration camps.

White, Negro Baptists Join In Tribute To Dr. Rushbrooke

Atlanta Baptists, both white and Negro, gathered at the First Baptist Church Monday to pay tribute to Dr. James Henry Rushbrooke—"a man who worked to bring the whole world into fellowship with Christ."

While the congregation stood with bowed heads and saddened hearts, Dr. William H. Borders, Negro pastor of the Wheat Street Baptist Church, led the prayer in memory of the President of the Baptist World Alliance, who died in England Saturday.

He prayed:

"We thank Thee for him who led us so well . . . for the height, depth and breadth of his spirit . . . for his vision. Grant that we shall be more determined that his spirit shall be transferred into our lives . . . And help us to see that those things which bind us together in one eternal fellowship are greater than those things which split us asunder . . ."

Dr. Louie D. Newton, Pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist Church and an intimate friend of Dr. Rushbrooke for many years, said he wanted to see "our Baptist people united in this hour of sorrow" and he personally had requested a prayer by the Negro pastor.

Dr. Newton gave a running biographical sketch of Dr. Rushbrooke, interspersed with anecdotes and fragments of conversation which brough. into clear focus the personality, spirit and ideas of the famed Baptist leader.

He said Dr. Rushbrooke was considered to have had "one of the foremost minds in England" and that he had been invited by the King to accept ambassadorships to Italy, France and Japan.

Dr. Newton recalled that when Dr. Rushbrooke was elected to head the world's Baptists in 1939 in Atlanta, he had said:

"My concern is not to wear the honor or the presidency but to be a servant of the people of the world."

Dr. James W. Middleton, Pastor of the First Baptist Church, presided at the memorial service.

Greene Sisters Sell Gray News

Constitution State News Service.

GRAY, Feb. 3—The Jones County News, 50-year-old weekly, has been purchased by two veterans of World War II, it was revealed here Monday. Jere N. Moore, Milledgeville publisher, and J. Fred Eden, of Gray, have assumed editorship of the publication following the transaction.

The new owners succeed as editors Misses Vera and Etta Greene, who have published the paper since the death of their father, Mark A. Greene.

The Greene sisters are among the well-known women publishers of newspapers in the State and have taken an active part in the Press Conventions and the Press Institute, held annually.

Both of the new editors served in the armed forces until recent months when Moore returned to edit and publish the Milledgeville Union-Recorder, and Eden became managing editor of the McDuffie Progress in Thomson.

In assuming the editorship Monday, the new owners revealed plans for an expanded coverage of the news of the county and section.

The first issue of the News under the new management is scheduled for Feb. 7. Editorial offices will be maintained in Gray, the county seat of Jones County, and the paper will be published in the Milledgeville plant of the Union-Recorder.

SINCE V-J DAY

1,500,000 Off U. S. Payroll

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—(INS)—The Civil Service Commission announced Friday night that almost 1,500,000 Federal employees have been dropped from Government pay rolls since V-J Day.

The Commission said the number of civilian workers at home and abroad totaled 2,227,000 at the end of 1946 as compared with almost 3,700,000 on June 30, 1945. It reported:

"During the postwar period 17 emergency war agencies have been either terminated outright or transferred to other agencies for liquidation or curtailed operation with reduced functions and personnel.

"These agencies employed more than 170,000 persons at their highest respective levels of employment."

The Commission stated that Federal employment in the continental United States at the end of December fell below the 2,000,000 mark for the first time in the postwar period for a total of 1,980,475.

This was described by the Commission as representing a decrease of about 935,000 employees since June 30, 1945, and a drop of more than a million since the 1945 peak.

Five Women, 6 Men To Die For Nazi Acts

HAMBURG, Germany, Feb. 3—(AP)—Five women and six men were sentenced to death by a British Military Court here Monday after conviction of abusing and killing Allied personnel in the Ravensbruck Women's Concentration Camp.

One of the women sentenced was an international spy and adventuress, Carmen Maira Mory. She paled, lowered her eyelashes and made the sign of the cross as she stood in the dock.

Then she turned and stumbled out as one after another of the accused 15 camp employees—mainly doctors and nurses—entered the dock to hear their fate.

Others sentenced to death were Johann Schwarzhuber, Ludwig Ramdohr, Dorothea Binz, Greta Boesel, Vera Salvequart, Elizabeth Marschall, Gerhard Schidlausky, Percy Treite, Rolf Rosenthal and Gustav Binder.

Other sentences in the trial, in which all 15 defendants were convicted were: Heinrich Peters, 15 years; Margarete Mewes, 10 years; Eugenia Von Skene, 10 years, and Martin Hellinger, 15 years.

Evidence brought out in the trial, which has been in progress since Dec. 5, showed that at least 8,000 Allied women died or are missing from Ravensbruck Camp during the war years.

Churchwomen Hit White Primary

Two resolutions, one denouncing the white primary and the other approving jury duty for women, have been passed by the Executive Board of the Atlanta Council of Churchwomen. The Board is composed of 48 women, representing Protestant women of many denominations.

The Council went "on record as unalterably opposed to the abridgement of the rights and privileges of citizens on account of race, religion or place of birth."

In the other resolution the Council said: "Having sponsored jury duty for women 10 years ago, we now wish to reaffirm our approval of such a bill now being prepared for presentation in the 1947 session of the Georgia Legislature."

$3,437 Is Haul In 3 Robberies

Burglars got busy on Peachtree Street Sunday night.

They attempted without success to blow open the safe in the office of the First Methodist Church at 360 Peachtree St., N. E., where they drilled two holes in the door of the safe, but left before they got it open.

At 467 Peachtree St., N. E., they got in the rear door of Milady's Beauty Shop and made away with goods valued at $37.

Then the same burglars, according to Detectives J. H. Langley and P. B. Greene, tunnelled into the Derby Liquor Store next door at 471 Peachtree St., N. E., and took away 63 cases of assorted whiskies valued at $3,400.

Hog Prices Gain In Past Week

Southern farmers continued last week to send a large number of hogs to market and receipts were about 10 percent greater with most of the increase in the Georgia-Florida-Alabama marketing area, the Production and Marketing Administration reported.

Largest receipts of hogs were in the eight major packing plants in the peanut belt of Georgia, Florida and Alabama, where a combined total of more than 22,000 were received compared with 20,500 the previous week. During January more than 100,000 hogs were received against 77,000 in January, 1946, and 123,000 in 1945.

Hog prices at most markets during the past week gained about 50 cents per hundred pounds for barrows and gilts, while other classes advanced to a lesser extent. Despite sharply reduced numbers, cattle prices were only about steady.

Clothing Prices Still Rising, Merchandise Mart Shows

By JIM FURNISS

Contrary to common belief, prices of well-made women's and children's apparel are still climbing.

Such is the consensus of several hundred manufacturers and buyers of Milady's clothing who packed the Municipal Auditorium Monday during the first day of the Southeastern Travelers' Exhibitors' Merchandise Mart.

Manufacturers explained that the end of OPA brought an end to a type of operation undertaken to evade control and flood the market with cheap goods at high prices. This type of manufacturer found the going tough when OPA ended and unrestricted production started the better-made goods back to market. Caught with big stocks, they had to unload at low prices, and had to raise a rumpus about lower prices in order to unload.

In the regular lines, prices on various piece goods, underwear, woven slips, gowns, pajamas and better ready-to-wear were up as much as 20 to 40 percent over OPA prices, it appeared from sales at the 200-odd exhibitors' booths covering every inch of floor space in the huge auditorium.

Typical of buyers from moderate-sized communities was Mrs. George Mays, of Metter, who said she did the bulk of her buying at marts such as the one in progress.

"I am going to be very careful about buying this trip," she said, explaining that although prices were up, there now were more goods and lines on the market from which to choose.

In the accessory line, Bill Evans, of Greensboro, N. C., said wholesale prices on gloves are higher than retail prices in some instances. Saul Klenberg, an Atlanta manufacturer, said his supply of top quality goods was still limited, while prices were still rising because of increased production and labor costs.

The Mart, which will continue through Wednesday, is the first of four to be held here this year. A fashion show for buyers at the Ansley Hotel last night was one of the features of the meeting.

Mrs. W. T. Adams, Air Enthusiast At 90, Is Dead

Perhaps one of the oldest air travelers in Georgia, Mrs. Mary Ella Adams, of 1005 Lawton St., S. W., who took her first trip aloft at the age of 87 and has since refused to travel any other way, died Monday in a private hospital after a long illness. She was 90 years of age, the widow of William T. Adams.

Funeral services will be held at 3:30 p. m. today in the chapel of Awtry & Lowndes with the Rev. Paul S. James officiating. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Several years ago, Mrs. Adams was in Dallas, Texas, with a daughter. The two were unable to secure rail passage back to Atlanta. Mrs. Adams overrode her daughter's protests, and the two flew home.

Since that time, Mrs. Adams had flown three times to Tampa, Fla., and once to Tallahassee, Fla. The last flight was accomplished about a year ago.

She came to Atlanta in 1919, and was the second oldest member of the Baptist Tabernacle. She was also a member of the Matureen Class there.

Survivors include four daughters, Mrs. Johnny M. Williams, Mrs. Mary A. Reeves, both of Atlanta, Mrs. Delia Gaines, of Tallahassee, Fla., and Mrs. C. A. Hodges, of Oconee; three sons, C. E. Adams, of Arcadia, Fla., N. J. Adams, of Albany, and W. L. Adams, of Sandersville; 16 grandchildren, 14 great-grandchildren, and several nieces and nephews.

Ogeechee Levee Costs Prohibitive, U. S. Declares

The Corps of Engineers has rejected as "inadvisable at this time" a plea for an $82,500 appropriation for levees on the Ogeechee River in Chatham County, according to the War Department. The Engineers said the proposed levees would prevent floods, but the "cost could not now be economically justified." The project has been pending since 1909.

U. S. District Judge Robert L. Russell declared a mistrial on motion of defense counsel. There was no objection from prosecuting attorneys.

Alvin L. George Dies in Crash

A disastrous skid in his auto early Monday morning resulted in the death a short time later of Alvin L. George, 22-year-old sailor of the Naval Air Station. DeKalb Bill Asks People's Election Of School Board

The DeKalb delegation tossed a number of local bills into the House hopper Monday, among them being a constitutional amendment providing for the election of the county's school board by the people, instead by a grand jury.

The proposal also asks the superintendent be appointed by the board instead of elected by the people.

The bill would create a bond commission to administer the funds of DeKalb County's recent bond issue. Members of the commission would be: J. D. Chestnut, W. E. Cobb, Kelly Cofer, Dr. Sam Guy, Kelsey Howington, John Johnson, Samuel Jones, Reese Livsey, D. N. McCurdy, A. P. Milam and Hiram Stubbs.

A constitutional amendment would permit DeKalb County to build and repair streets, sidewalks, curbing, water and sewer systems and to assess the costs on a pro rata basis to owners of property abetting these improvements—if 51 percent of the property owners agree to the improvements.

Three bills affect the town of Lithonia. One would raise the Mayor's salary from $200 to $500 annually and permit the levying of an ad valorem tax of 10 cents per $100 for cemetery maintenance. Another would enlarge the city limits. A third bill would permit the Mayor and Council to assess the entire costs of paving sidewalks and curbing.

East Point Asks School Building

Construction of a new school in East Point's Colonial Hills section was requested by the East Point City Council Monday night in a letter to the Fulton County Board of Education.

The council also elected six new firemen and two new policemen and voted to call a special session on Feb. 12 to discuss the city's first budget.

Restoration of the "Welcome" signs on highways leading into East Point was also considered, when the council asked City Engineer George Sparks to obtain cost bids.

Auto Business Brushes Up On Sales Technique

Car salesmen, whose stock in trade since the war has been the polite brush-off, are back brushing up on how to sell automobiles, according to top Studebaker executives in Atlanta Monday for the opening of the Yarbrough Motor Company.

Paul G. Davis, General Sales Manager and former Atlanta Regional Manager, together with K. B. Elliott, Sales Vice President, and M. S. Brooks, of Studebaker's export division, observed sales methods were receiving increasing attention despite opinions the car shortage will last through 1947.

For the Southeast, they forcast newer dealer buildings, more sales clinics, better service, finer repair equipment and eventually a regional storage warehouse, to be located in Atlanta. The Studebaker unique passenger car design brought its salesmen more than their share of headaches last year saying "no" gracefully to would-be customers, they said.

The Public Wants the Whole Loaf

As much respect as we hold for his opinion in such matters, it seems to us that Sen. George is overly conservative in his estimate of the number of persons who may be cut from the Federal payroll without crippling essential government services.

Sen. George, who won nationwide recognition for his financial acumen as Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, has long been an advocate of governmental economy. But his proposal to reduce the President's budget four billion dollars, partly by firing half a million persons, is not nearly so appealing as Republican promises to reduce the Federal payroll by an even million.

The Republicans won their present congressional majority largely by emphasizing this promise in the campaign.

That they intend to make at least a token effort to effectuate it is indicated by the insistence of Chairman Taber, of the House Appropriations Committee, that a full million persons be discharged.

Sen. George's proposal thus represents a compromise between GOP views and those of Democratic leaders who contend that the President's budget, as submitted, is an irreducible minimum.

Approximately 2,300,000 persons are currently in Federal employ.

Sen. George would reduce that number only to the 1941, or prewar, level.

But the Republicans were elected on a promise to trim at least a million from government payrolls and they should be allowed to try to do so.

For a State Chamber of Commerce

The Atlanta Chamber of Commerce has joined other forces over Georgia in recommending organization of a State Chamber of Commerce. The suggestion first was broached in Savannah last August by Pres. Belmont Dennis at the annual convention of the Georgia Press Association. Now the idea appears to be taking hold. If cities and towns over the State will unite their strength, Georgia can develop a trade board which can be instrumental in attracting much-needed industries.

Despite a tremendous increase in industries during the war, Georgia remains primarily an agricultural State. More industries are needed to balance our agricultural economy. The need is particularly acute in the smaller cities and towns.

In 1945, one of our most prosperous years, Georgia's average family income was $2,767 while the national average was $3,613. If, through attracting more industries, a State trade body could pull the average family income in Georgia up to the national level it would mean $664,000,000 additional purchasing power.

Other States, such as Florida, the New England group and California, have found chambers of commerce beneficial in creating and attracting industry. Georgia has lagged behind in this respect. While economic conditions still are fluid as an aftermath of the war, now is an ideal time for Georgians to band together for a concerted drive to balance our agricultural economy with a generous sprinkling of industrial plants scattered throughout the State.

Milk Prices Should Come Down

Milk costs continue to decline throughout the country.

In Chicago last week, major dairies reduced the delivered price of milk a cent a quart.

Likewise, in Milwaukee, milk has declined from 18 to 17 cents a quart, delivered.

However, there has been no move as yet to take similar action in Georgia, where milk still retails from 21 to 23 cents a quart. This despite the fact that Georgia milk prices were considerably above the national average even before recent reductions elsewhere.

With inflationary tendencies subsiding in other fields, Georgia housewives are beginning to wonder: What's keeping milk prices up in Georgia?

Atlanta's New Police Chief

Council's action in naming County Police Chief Herbert Jenkins to the vacancy occasioned by the death of City Police Chief M. A. Hornsby would seem to assure a continuation of the progress and efficiency which has characterized the municipal department in recent years.

A veteran of 15 years on the Atlanta force, Chief Jenkins was given a leave of absence last month to take over the county department. He returns to head the city police force as a recognition of his outstanding ability in the law-enforcement field.

The Constitution congratulates Council on its choice and Chief Jenkins on his new opportunity. Meanwhile, the County Commission is faced with its same old problem once again.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

The Constitution welcomes letters from its readers. They must be signed, should not exceed 200 words. We regret no letters can be returned.

Jackasses

Editor Constitution: Some 50 years ago Sam Jones was holding a meeting in Texas in a town that was a famous market for jackasses. A friend in Cartersville wrote him: "Please buy and ship to me a pair of fine jackasses; I want to raise some mules." Sam Jones answered: "Why don't you buy 'em nearer home? Let me remind you that the Georgia Legislature is now in session. Go down to Atlanta, and up on Capitol Hill is the greatest assortment of jackasses in the nation. And some of 'em can be bought cheap."

What would Sam Jones say were he alive today?

Good Man

Editor, Constitution: Though we are only high school students, we're old enough to know a good man. We think Herman Talmadge is a fine man. A man who loved his father. The father who loved Georgia and had fought for Georgia for many years. Why should H. Talmadge want to give up fighting?

It will be a great loss to Georgia if the Supreme Court rules against H. Talmadge. He is a fine intelligent young man that the world will be looking to in a year.

Why Hullaballoo?

Editor Constitution: Both Talmadge and Thompson have agreed to abide by the decision of the courts. Surely both men must think they are right. It seems to me that all of the uprising and accusations are out of order. Shall we not wait for the courts or whatever it takes to settle this controversy? And send up a united prayer that we may have a righteous verdict?

Encouraging Hate

Editor Constitution: I am writing in the interest of the primary I am opposed to the so-called "White Primary" and the methods being used for political control. It not only denies the Negro his citizenship rights but the whites, too.

If Legislature goes headlong into this thing, I hope it results into a two-party system which we need in the South. I'll certainly work for that end.

If there has to be discrimination made, it should be on qualification rather than color. North Carolina has given the Negro his right to vote for many years.

If the Legislature passes this bill then they are encouraging hate organizations. We have certainly had enough against us in Georgia. Why add more?

Yours for a better Georgia.

Sovereign Body

Editor Constitution: It is indeed a tragedy that our people are becoming alarmed over the condition of our governing body. It seems to me that when we elect our Representatives that we put in their hands our governmental problems and since they have decided in favor of Herman Talmadge, then since the General Assemly is a sovereign body, then we ought to have let things be as they say. REV. L. P. SHAW.

Austria Example?

Editor Constitution: I have been a devoted citizen of our beautiful Georgia and hope you do not let happen here what happened in my native country of Austria back in 1938!

Races in Georgia

Editor Constitution: In view of the fact that Georgia politicians are getting into the habit of injecting racial questions into every political campaign it behooves us as thinking citizens to seek actual facts from nonpartisan sources as to the actual degree of menace presented by any racial group.

The writer, after hearing the argument for and against what some of us choose to call tolerance, went to the 1940 Census records to determine exactly what kind of people make up the population of our State.

Here are the actual figures in percent of total population:

White (native born)	64.6
Negro (native born)	34.5
Jews	0.77
Born in Austria	0.00008
Born in Czechoslovakia	0.00001
Born in Denmark	0.00002
Born in England	0.0003
Born in Finland	0.00002
Born in France	0.00008
Born in Germany	0.0004
Born in Greece	0.0003
Born in Ireland	0.0001
Born in Italy	0.0001
Born in Norway	0.00001
Born in Poland	0.0003
Born in Russia	0.0006
Born in Sweden	0.00006

Our politicians are well acquainted with the above figures and it is the basis of their agitating the "white supremacy" discussion every time they come before the people. They know that we who are white and born in Georgia comprise 64.6 percent of the total vote. They sometimes make this appeal to us so strong that we are blinded to the fact that they have no experience and that their ideals of democracy do not coincide with those of the majority of our people.

We can and will have native born, Protestant, white supremacy in Georgia . . . for the simple reason that we can outvote all other minorities by nearly two to one. However, we should be careful of any candidate whose sole reason for existence is to "protect" us from what feeble opposition we might get.

Route 41 Magnet That Bisects Nation

BRADENTON, Fla.—You can take a sick child and flee along Highway 41 hunting the sun and see what man and God have wrought, although I must admit you see the latter in the light of what man has done to it since the time when man crawled out of the mud and was given the gift of reason and, with it, immortality.

Highway 41 runs straight north from Miami, excusing a few twists and turns, on through Chicago, across Wisconsin and to the very end of a peninsula which extends out into Lake Superior and a town called Copper Harbor.

It crosses seven States in its windings, knows lakes, rivers, mountains, plains, flats, gulfs, bays and an ocean. It knows freezes and the sound of breaking ice in lakes and rivers. It knows Florida and Miami, where sun is warm the year around and flowers bloom in tropical lushness while Copper Harbor, Wis., is banked with snow and ice and the lake is frozen as far as eyes can see. It knows the vegetable fields of Florida, where the newly turned rich black soil pushes out great, fine vegetables in a few short weeks and is ready almost immediately to push out more carrots and cauliflower, beans and cabbage, tomatoes and squash that are sweet with much sun and large from the richness of earth.

Into Georgia It curves into Georgia through fields of cotton and tobacco. It drives north through Tennessee with its cattle and dairy farms, its tobacco and grain and blue grass of middle Tennessee, and into more of the same in Kentucky. It knows Indiana's rich lands of corn and cattle. It catches the corner of Illinois at the great industrial and agricultural distributing center which is Chicago and then drives hard into Wisconsin's regions of iron and copper, seeing only the fringes of the great milk and butter factories of that prosperous State.

The highway is a magnet. It draws life to it. From the fields behind it, which God wrought but from which man has cut the trees, plowed the soil so that it is at the mercy of wind and eroding rains, they have come to set up small shanties out of new-cut, unpainted planks in which they sell snuff, tobacco, bakers' bread, canned vegetables and discouraged-looking vegetables in season. Maybe the store has an unpainted gasoline pump, selling unnamed and cut-rate gasoline. It sits there, failing, waiting for someone else to buy it and try it, or waiting for the inevitable day when it will close up and small boys will break out its two or three windows and the weather will give it that forlorn look which it gives to all places that have failed and been left with curses and few regrets.

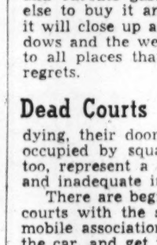
Dead Courts There are, too, dead tourist courts which should never have been built. Others courts, too, are dying, their doors straggling and hanging drunkenly. A few are occupied by squatters or those undetermined gypsies. But they, too, represent a hope that was unsound in conception and cheap and inadequate in construction.

There are beginning to come more and more of the good tourist courts with the stamp of approval of the powerful triple-A automobile association. You may drive in, take what you like out of the car, and get in the next morning and drive off with no delay. There are baths and steam heat and good beds and good service. For these it is necessary to put out the no-vacancy sign early in the afternoon.

Here and there, too, are the roadway eating places which have Mr. Duncan Hines' stamp of approval. But they are not many. The best place to stop to eat is one that has lots of truck drivers and there are huge machines parked by them. There you may get good coffee and reasonably good, plain food. The sandwiches will be eatable. Truck drivers learn.

"Know How" These, plus the few good roadway eating places, are doing the fine job of killing off the dirty and shabby "Bar-B-Q" places which nine times out of ten could s no health or sanitary inspection and which almost always d bad food so that tourists learned to carry a box of bicarbonate of soda in the glove compartment in the days when there were no other eating places along Highway 41 once it dipped into the Deep South.

The magnet of the highway is drawing better shops and stores with more know-how. The filling stations are cleaned up and pumping gas almost constantly, because America is on the move again, and nowhere is the sound of the going and coming cars more constant than on Highway 41 from Miami up on to Copper Harbor, Wis., pushed far out into the waters of Lake Superior.



RALPH T. JONES

There Is No Doubt People Are Funny

If you doubt the oddity of humans, as a race, just ask the police. Of Los Angeles, for instance.

A young woman was murdered. First evidence of the oddity of people is found in the nickname of the victim. It seems she was known in certain circles she frequented as "The Black Dahlia." Why? Because of her penchant for black clothing. Certainly, such a name is ample evidence itself of the funniness of the people who would use it.

Then, in one day, three different individuals—two of them women—confessed to the murder. Apparently none of the three are actually guilty. A little simple questioning indicated that.

Now, if people were not funny, how do you explain one character, let alone three, who would claim to be guilty of so abhorrent a crime as murder and mutilation while actually innocent? It is funniness carried to the extreme of fantasia.

Yet, if you talk with experienced police officers, detectives, they will tell you that, in practically every murder investigation, if the case receives nationwide publicity, false confessions will come in by wholesale. The quirk which impels false confession to a sensational crime is not at all uncommon. Why? Well, the only guessable reason is an abnormal hunger to see their names in print.

Add To Costs Obviously, such false confessions make the work of the police much more difficult—and expensive to the taxpayers—than it should be. Every such self-nominated suspect has to be tracked down, held and questioned. Just to prove the confession is false, at least.

It might be a good idea to make such false confession of criminal guilt a crime itself, punishable by a term in prison. Or, perhaps, prima facie evidence of insanity, calling for confinement of the perpetrator in a sanitarium for the mentally diseased.

Aren't such loonies guilty, at least, of interference with a police officer in the course of his duty? I believe that is already a misdemeanor.

How Slanders Start Then there are the folks who seem to take a demoniac delight in starting slanderous stories about other people. Without any foundation of evidence.

I was victim of such a creature once. A woman.

Old readers of the column may remember that, on several occasions, illness has compelled a hiatus in its daily appearance. On such occasions, a line in italic has stated I was ill, thus explaining the column's absence from its customary spot.

So, this woman commented to another, who happened to be an acquaintance of mine:

"Well, I see Ralph Jones is off on another drunken spree."

My acquaintance, startled, even shocked, asked the source of the report.

"Oh, of course they say he's sick," the creature responded. "But I notice he has several times commended the work done by Alcoholics Anonymous. How does he know anything about that organization if he isn't an alcoholic himself? Then these periodic 'sicknesses' of his. Bah! Sick, indeed."

And she walked away, the picture of righteous disgust. So my friend told me, reporting the incident.

Unfortunately, my friend did not get the woman's name and address. If she had, I might have been able to collect sizeable damages for slander or defamation of character, or something.

Because, my friends, I do not drink alcoholic beverages.

I do think, though, people who thus start unfounded slander are further living evidence of the truth that people are very, very funny. Or queer.

The Clincher Are people funny? I mean, crazy. Watch that guy driving an automobile through the city streets. He will violate a dozen traffic laws, to say nothing of safe-driving rules, in two miles and, arrived at his destination, will spend 10 times the total minutes saved gossiping with a crony or staring at something he doesn't want in a store window.

If that is proof of craziness, I think half of Atlanta driving cars is crazy.

ALTAR STAIRS — By John Marvin Rast

Is God on the margin of our lives or at the center? Do not answer immediately with words. Consider your life. Is God consciously a factor in your plans, in your choices of conduct? If He is not, do not spend any time going over the threadbare arguments with your soul why He counts for little. Small comfort can be found in the fact that He is still on the rim of man's social, economic, governmental affairs. To us to whom He has revealed Himself in the pure and compassionate Christ, comes the inescapable obligation to open our hearts to the overflowing fullness of His love.

Ever-living God, may we so walk with Thee in trust today that we shall be enabled to translate that trust into courageous and joyous achieving after the manner of Christ.

VOTERS' LEAGUE

Fulton System Is Endangered

Hope was aroused in Fulton County last week that out of the general scrapping of primary regulations as envisaged in the white primary bill, Fulton's own permanent registration system and voting machine law might be saved at least for the general elections. The original white primary bill as passed by the House would wreck Fulton County's model registration and voting machine laws along with all other primary legislation now on the statute books. The Fulton delegation introduced an amendment which would salvage these two laws for the general elections only. The amendment was passed.

THEN House Bill 96 was introduced at a later session. It is a companion measure to the white primary bill and is supposedly an "educational requirements" law. However, it contains certain iniquitous provisions which would do away with permanent registration for the general elections as well as primaries. If it were passed it would render void the Fulton County amendment, since it was introduced later, probably would be signed later and would therefore take precedence over the amendment.

ANOTHER educational requirements bill—not to be confused with House Bill 96—was introduced in the House by Towill, of Richmond. The Towill bill is based on the New York system which is generally regarded as a good one. Towill's bill would in no way interfere with permanent registration or use of voting machines in the general elections. It was introduced as a substitute for the white primary bill but was ruled out by the House speaker as "not germane." It has been introduced in the Senate.

THE LEAGUE of Women Voters for two years has pointed out the dangers of a general scrapping of primary safeguards and is hopeful that the white primary bill and House Bill 96 both will be rejected by the Senate.

In any event, let the Fulton delegation, which courageously voted against the white primary bill, continue its efforts to save permanent registration and voting machines for Fulton County and, if possible, the rest of the State as well.

GEORGIA EDITORS SAY:

LOST RESPECT

(Sylvester Local)

The State Patrol has about lost the little respect the public once had for it. It was never needed. The work it is supposed to do ought to be left to the law enforcement officers in the counties. Now is a good time to abolish this tax-eating army.

ABOLISH STATE PATROL

(Walton Tribune)

If the Georgia State Patrol and National Guard are to be employed in strong arm and ouster tactics, it might be the part of wisdom to go ahead and abolish both of them. The people of this State do not relish government by the militia or any group of armed men. Furthermore, they will not submit to it.

MALODOROUS SITUATION

(Floyd County Herald)

It is interesting to note that even some of the Talmadge faction's most loyal backers are displeased with the present situation. This presages a stench so malodorous that even the strong stomached are turned away.

Eternal Remittance The Price of Conflict

The Veterans' Administration has officially closed its pension list for the War of 1812.

At that rate, we won't make the final payment on Appomattox until some time around the turn of the century.

Everything about war has been speeded up except amortization of the costs.

Thus the orators who have been worrying about the financial burden of the recent conflict falling on the next generation should revise their speeches to read "the next after the next after the next. . . ."

For the scars of war, permanent though they seem at the time, are as but brief, transient things compared to the bills thereof.

That's why I continue convinced that the best way to effectuate lasting peace would be universal adoption of a policy: "Positively No Wars Fought On Credit."

It's man's predilection for waging hostilities on the cuff that makes me think the scientists in error when they predict eventual totally annihilative warfare. . . . Somebody has always got to be around to pick up the check.

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

An Object Lesson For Labor Unions

WASHINGTON—Some sort of lesson to labor and the working newspapermen's Guild, in particular, should lay in what happened in Philadelphia the other day. There the Philadelphia Record, one of the great liberal newspapers of the country, suspended publication and announced the sale of its properties to a rival concern after a prolonged strike of its editorial employees.

The paper, heretofore successfully published by David Stern, has been handicapped by a strike of some 400 of its editorial workers since Nov. 7. Various efforts had been made by the management to settle the strike. But the Guild, which is the working newspaperman's labor union, insisted on its full demands being met.

Finally in desperation Publisher Stern was forced to let the property go. Along with the Evening Courier and the Morning Post, of Camden, N. J., which he also owned, he sold out the Record to the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, a competitor.

Regretfully, Mr. Stern made a brief statement of explanation: "The strike against the Record by the American Newspaper Guild," he said, "has gone on for nearly three months. It has been impossible to obtain a fair settlement which would assure the newspaper of its ability to discharge its obligations to the public.

"This is not only because of the Guild's excessive demands. Guild policy has acted to restrict the rights of management to a degree where it has become too great a burden to operate a completely independent press."

Killed Goose Thus, those who have been enjoying the benefits of its employment have killed the goose that layed the golden egg. Striking for more pay and more privileges, the more than 400 employees who tied up the paper's operations have struck themselves out of a job. The source of their employment is no more.

Perhaps they may in time find other employment at equal or better rates, but they have killed the institution of which they were a part. The Philadelphia Record passes into history, and with it the last liberal publication of importance in the great Quaker City.

We must assume from Publisher Stern's statement that he was forced to act as he did in order to preserve his property interest. He found it unprofitable and untenable to continue the publication of the paper under conditions demanded by the Guild.

Many small and big business organizations have been beset with the same problems. Not all of them have been forced to take the drastic action followed by Mr. Stern. What he did should be a lesson to labor to be more reasonable in its demands.

Business, big and little, is guided by the profit motive, plus the normal enjoyment management gets from making a success of any enterprise. When these incentives of business operation are abused by excessive demands of selfish interest, there is a temptation for capital to retreat by withdrawing its investment. That leaves workers holding an empty bag.

One of the major difficulties of our reconversion effort has been the uncertainty over labor disputes. Most of last year was plagued with a series of strikes in key industries. Without these we would have progressed much further than we have. Production would have been nearer normal demands and the flow of goods would have benefitted all through the reduction in prices which ample supplies command.

No Gain It is doubtful that labor accomplished a net gain from all of the strikes that have followed the end of the war. That which it lost in strikes probably exceeds by a good figure the amount gained above what management offered through negotiation in increased wages.

These are things for the more sober-minded labor leaders to remember. Abuses may exist, of course. This is not to say that labor may not be exploited in some cases still. It will ever be this way, perhaps.

Some years ago a group of workmen of the Ford Motor Company threatened a strike and demanded more pay. Their job was to paint a thin stripe on the spokes of the old wooden-type wheels. They insisted they were entitled to more money than ordinary painters who dabbed the stuff on with bigger brushes. Henry Ford agreed to consider their case. When they returned a few days later he thanked them for bringing the matter to his attention. He had decided that the stripes added nothing to the utility of his cars, so abandoned the practice of putting them on.

The workers had talked themselves out of a job. That seems to have been what happened at Philadelphia. It should be a warning to labor elsewhere of what comes from going too far.

Minds Make Interesting Reading

We see by the papers Dr. Franz J. Polgar, the Hungarian mind-reader, is coming to town again and we're that excited. Unless measles or the sitter strikes, we're bound to be in the Woman's Club auditorium come the night of Feb. 14.

It's as inevitable and undoubtedly as morbid as the return of the murderer to the scene of the crime. You see, Dr. Polgar read our mind once—and since then he's held an unholy fascination for us.

NOT THAT we want our mind read again—perish fabbid. We just want to be on hand when he starts fooling around in the labyrynths of other people's minds.

Dr. Polgar, in case you've missed one of his many visits to Atlanta, is one of those serious scientists who goes around amazing college professors and medical men with his talents in mental telepathy and hypnosis and astounding and entertaining the rest of the world. He will give a demonstration at the drop of a hat. He usually comes into town accompanied by his wife, a lady who very carefully will not walk on her husband's left because she knows when she's on that side of him she can't have a private thought to her name. They receive the press in their hotel suite and from there on out Dr. Polgar is performing.

He reads reporters and photographer's minds—neat trick, that—and he will obligingly send you back to your childhood by hypnosis or put you on a cheap drunk with a glass of water. Once we plied a couple of soldiers with paper cups full of water from a hotel fountain and watched them progress with each cup from a pleasantly glowy, gigglesome stage to downright sloppy drunkenness. They were weaving and hiccoughing when Dr. Polgar brought them out of it—completely sober, very dignified young men without the sign of a hangover.

DR. POLGAR was in Hungary's medical corps during the first World War and was wounded so badly he lost his speech. He learned, he says, during a year-long convalescence that he was able to anticipate the actions of doctors and nurses and, to their chagrin, was reading their minds. This faculty improved with use and Dr. Polgar firmly believes prehistoric man used mind-reading before he was able to talk.

He holds two degrees from the University of Budapest where he was a member of the faculty and where he did the greater part of his research in hypnotics as a cure for nervous disorders and as a substitute for anesthesia. Serious use of hypnosis is a help in diagnosing mental disorders, he feels, and has been particularly helpful in curing such difficulties as stammering.

"HYPNOTISM can cure only those diseases which are imaginary," Dr. Polgar once remarked, "It is most effective in curing diseases that do not exist."

As we said, we're looking forward to Dr. Polgar's visit. There are a lot of minds in Atlanta that ought to make interesting reading —and Dr. Polgar just might hit upon one of them the night he appears here!

CHANNING COPE

It's Time To Quit Throwing Rocks

We throw so many rocks at each other here in our pleasant State of Georgia that one could get the impression that there are no nice people here. Nothing could be further from the truth. Any person with half an interest in his fellow man will find that if he will but remain still for a moment or two he will become surrounded with folks of all kinds and from all walks of life who have no ulterior motive deeper than merely being in the company with another friendly spirit. In fact, one could spend his life in this way and get considerably more for his efforts (or inertia) than if he had worked hard at some other trade.

I recommend for experimental purposes of this nature a sunny spot in front of the Henry Grady Hotel on Peachtree Street. (Other places are just as good but I am more familiar with the Grady spot). Just move up against the building and stand there for awhile, unhurried, unruffled and unconcerned. Soon, some fine spirit will poke you in the ribs and give you a greeting that makes you feel like you amount to something. Perhaps it will be Pierce Harris, the dynamic Methodist parson, who will be reminded of the time he was preaching up in the mountains somewhere, and used to stand around on the street in the hope of catching an unwary parishioner who had not paid up his dues. Or it may turn out to be Jesse Walton, the business agent of the streetcar men's union, who pauses to jeer at one of your columns and hopes you will finally get wise to yourself and lay off praising that blankety blank farm bureau.

Ernie Rogers, the genial genius of the printed word may stop to remind you in the words of the world's shortest poem that "Channing Cope is the farmer's hope," and then give out with a sparkling razzberry that all but knocks the props out from under you. Then here comes the mayor of Rochelle with talk of their new golf course and another Rochelle citizen reminds you of the country hams they are now sending around the globe. About every fourth person along will hail from some town, village or farm from around over Georgia and will look friendly and act cordially. Many of them will stop and palaver with you. Occasionally someone raises his hat, but that practice has about gone out. (The late Preston Arkwright used to say that when a man lifted his hat to another man he did it because he wanted the other fellow to lift his hat to HIM.)

WOMEN are friendlier than they used to be in public, some of them being perfectly willing to stop and swap a sentence or two with a male acquaintance. And they don't expect a feller to stand there in the wind with his hat off, and that is nice, too. Friendship depends on people being comfortable and natural in each other's presence and that old pose of the gent standing there with his hat raised aloft and a silly grin on his face, while he rattled on ceaselessly about inanities of one kind or another, never did help anyone's feelings.

Yes, it's a good world today; the sun is shining and so are the people's hearts. The thing to do is to commandeer certain spots along Peachtree and other popular streets after the manner of the hotel sitters who lived for generations at the Waldorf-Astoria. Thus the institution would become permanent, and we could choose our peregrinations around Atlanta having in the mind the folks we desired to gas with, today.

I must go now, here comes Ollie Reeves.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

Discusses Ickes' Summer Home

WASHINGTON — Breathless and busting with good news, I bring my fellow citizens word this beautiful day that we have had the privilege and honor to provide a beautiful Summer home set in a park of 2,200 acres for Harold L. Ickes and the lucky girl who was won by his niggardly, miserly, curmudgeonly charm and their bairns these last few years. Old Mr. Ickes, who calls himself a liberal in the strictly political sense of the word, a limited meaning never to be confused with extravagance in his case, is noted for his scrupulous honesty.

HAVING no such gift of poetic expression, myself, I resort to a homely comparison. In the Arizona desert we have a little rodent also noted for his honesty, known as the pack rat or trade rat. The pack, or trade rat will pick up little trinkets, such as a diamond ring or a jeweled watch and whisk them off to his hole in the ground, if you don't watch out, but he always leaves something in exchange, often a piece of old, dead cholla, which is a small cactus with stickers all over it and suitable for throwing away if you use tongs, or a rusty bottle cap, which he considers to be a fair trade for that which has caught his eye.

Well, today I went over to the Department of the Interior, which, as you may know, is under new management and, finding that Cap Krug, the new Secretary, was just about to be off somewhere, like a Secretary of State, I was sulking in a hall and trading glares with a hand-painted oil portrait of Ickes, the biggest portrait in all the gallery of immortal ex-Secretaries, and holding my own, if I do say so, when a right nice girl came along. She said, "I will bet you came down here to find out about how the Ickeses have been spending their Summers up at Acadia Park, a public property managed by the National Park Service of the Department of the Interior, at a very moderate rent."

"THE GESTAPO has been tapping my thoughts," exclaimed I, and she said, "Come and see our Mr. Oscar Chapman, the Under-Secretary, who is a public servant with nothing to conceal, not that you could say that Mr. Ickes ever concealed the facts, either, because if you keen, alert, trained observers of the Fourth Estate—"

"Oh," said I, "enough of this hero worship!"

"—Because," went on she, "if you don't ask questions, you can't expect a man like Mr. Ickes, so busy with his cares and affairs, to volunteer information about every little detail. And this," she said, with a pretty flirt of her dancing curls, "is our Mr. Chapman."

I first commiserated Mr. Chapman on the great blow to the morale of the personnel of Interior that President Truman struck when he accepted Mr. Ickes' resignation. But he is a game fellow, imbued with the carry-on spirit, and, with a slight tremor of some emotion, but dry of eye—repeat, dry of eye—he said some trite thing that sounded like, "Oh, well, we must accept the sweet with the bitter in this life."

I stated my business and Mr. Chapman blanched but resolutely unto me did say:

THAT IT IS a matter of public business and public record that some years ago the Rockefellers and others contributed money to buy a passel of land at Bar Harbor, Maine, and gave it to the National Park Service as a public park. That a gentleman named Homan bequeathed his house and 18 acres to his country to be embraced in Acadia Park. That the Department of the Interior adopted a regulation under Mr. Ickes, which gives the Secretary first claim for Summer occupancy. That the house has a beautiful great living room with a large fire-place and a picture window overlooking a bluff to the bay, three bedrooms, a servant's room, dining room, kitchen and bath, and was furnished by the Interior Department at a cost of about $3,500 in 1943. That by the terms of the deed this house was to be available to "Government officials and other prominent citizens" for Summer use. And that the Department, under Mr. Ickes, determined not to be mercenary and thus to charge only a "very moderate" rent.

Mr. Chapman said the rent was $50 a month and that Mr. Ickes had put himself down for August and, sometimes, September, for, "I think three years," including 1946, when he was no longer Secretary. This year, he qualified as a "prominent citizen" and got the place because he had been alert enough to put his name at the head of the list. Krug, although he was now Secretary, may not have heard about the house and his privileged priority but he knows now and even though he shouldn't pull his rank and privilege, the Ickes family won't be there in 1947. For one reason, Krug is fixing to raise the rent to a fair competitive basis and Sen. Ralph O. Brewster, of Maine, says that would be $1,000 a season. As though any other reason were needed, Ickes didn't file his application for 1947 early enough and others have beaten him to it.

CHAPMAN said, further, that Tommy Corcoran, another great liberal, also in the political sense, known in the early and corny Roosevelt humor as Tommy The Cork, had the place for weekends one year and that the Chapmans, themselves, had it for a couple of weeks in July, 1946.

Unlike some contemptibles who exploit their positions to get something for nothing, Ickes always insists on paying at least a very moderate amount for everything he gets from the Government. He adhered to that policy, though it may cut an old miser to the heart, when, on two occasions, he put himself away in the Naval Hospital for treatment, services, room and board at $3.50 a day, because the civilian hospitals were not very good and much more expensive.

"Dr. W. T. Sherman Thorndyke, of Massachusetts General Hospital, says 'bed is no place for sick people. They should get up to get better' "—News item.

We fight our ills with divers pills, with tonics and with shots
For each disease from housemaid knees to colic or the botts,
We strive in vain to dodge the pain, when illnesses begin,
We loudly groan and grab the 'phone and call the doctor in.

When ills descend this faithful friend hauls out his stethoscope,
His cheerful air can chase despair and give us fresher hope,
We're scared to death and think each breath may take us from this place,
But get new nerve when we observe a smile upon his face.

Yet now and then these learned men are not entirely clear
On what is wrong and bring along a fellow-practioneer;
Then they discuss what's ailing us but often disagree,
And we must wait while they debate on how to split the fee.

When we are sick we want some quick attention, if you please,
And not a lot of on-the-spot experiments like these,
To jump from bed if we drop dead or just get well and strong,
While doctors fight among themselves to prove each other wrong.

HAROLD MARTIN

The Sheriff Made Some Communists

MIAMI—Just about the time the hard times smoothed out, and it began to look as if life were going to be pretty pleasant after all, the sheriff came.

There were five of us who had found this snug harbor—five depression-harassed drifters getting along the best we could. There was Bill Miller, who wore a beret and a little moustache that made him look like a Basque painter, who had come down from Toronto riding a big four-cylinder Henderson motorcycle that ran as sweet as an automobile. There was Clancy Connell, the chunky Irish guy from Deep River, Iowa, who had earned his way through the University of Iowa as a painter and handyman until the jobs ran out. He had come down on a big, high-headed Harley, bringing Perry Smythe, the scholarly-looking CPA from Cleveland, who had started out riding his thumb to the warm weather. And there were the two of us from Georgia.

Clannish We had met on the road, and in the way of wandering displaced persons of that time, which was back in 1930, we had formed a sort of clan, moving South together. Down here we had split up, hunting our own jobs and going our seperate ways, but keeping in touch, and getting together evenings and Sundays to wander around together.

Then Bill made the connection. He ran into a little, bald, fast-talking promoter named Bertram C. Day, who had talked the Florida Land Bank into letting him open up a supper club in an old hotel out in Coral Gables that had been closed since the big wind of 1926. And Day, Bill said, needed some people to staff the place. He couldn't pay much. In fact, he couldn't pay anything at all hardly. But we could live at the hotel and have our meals there free.

Occupations So we all quit what we were doing and went out to work at the hotel. Perry, the CPA, was made cashier; and Clancy was supposed to paint the place and keep it looking sharp; and my friend, Jack, was a busboy; and Bill just sort of walked around supervising, seeing that everything went smoothly. And me? Well, they dressed me up in a white silk shirt with flowing sleeves, and a pair of blue velvet pants, tight in the seat and flowering out in the legs, and held up by a broad red silk sash around the middle like bullfighters wear, and put me out in front to open car doors for people.

And it worked out fine for us, for it was mostly a place people came for dinner, and we had all the bright, long, sunshiny days to ourselves to lie in the sun and swim down at a little beach on the bay not far away where you could wade for a mile at low tide, seeing all sorts of strange fishes and crabs and things.

But the food was terrible, and the floor show—well, the floor show stank—and after about a month the people didn't come, but the bill collectors did.

Retreat So one night a big fellow drove up who did not look as if he were interested in food or floor shows either and when I opened the door for him I saw the badge on his shirt and it said "Sheriff" on it. So I lit out for the back, around through the patio, and passed the word, and while the sheriff was poking his legal papers at Bertram C. in the office, the help went out the back door.

We went out carrying what canned food we could find, which turned out to be nothing but asparagus tips and green peas, and one of those little gasoline stoves you pump up, and a blanket apiece. And there was a great roaring of motorcycles and wheezing of the old T-model coupe that Jack and I owned as we took off into the night.

It is a good thing it was a moonlight night, or we might never have found the place we did. It was a vacant house, far out on the edge of town, in a ghostly section where somebody had laid the streets and sidewalls and set up the lamp posts and all, and gotten the houses about half finished when big boom burst.

Haven So in this spooky-looking section, where the stucco, tiled-roof houses were falling in, looking for all the world as if they had been bombed, we found one finally with a roof on it and the floors in and we moved our gear in and set up housekeeping.

It was rough that first night, for it can get cold even in Miami when you are sleeping on a floor with just one blanket. But the next day Bill, who had camped in the north woods and knew about making beds of boughs, like a Boy Scout, went over in the bird sanctuary and cut armload after armload of pine branches and made them into beds, and after that we slept just fine. And right down the road was a grapefruit grove, with the big ripe fruit hanging pale yellow on the trees, and sweeter than any grapefruit you ever tasted.

Routine The one who was out of a job at the time would do the cooking and the cleaning up, and it worked out fine. Gradually word of the place got around among the guys on the road and every once in a while a new one would show up and ask to stay a while, and we'd let him come in so long as he worked enough to earn his keep.

And nobody ever bothered us. Though one day when I was out in front of the house washing a shirt, pounding it on the sidewalk to get it clean, since we were short of soap at the time, a big black chauffeur-driven Cadillac pulled up and stopped and a middle-aged gentleman of prosperous appearance stuck his head out.

"What are you doing, young man," he said.

I told him I was washing my shirt.

"Do you live in that house?" he asked.

"Temporarily," I said. I kept on washing the shirt.

"Hmmm," he said. "Anybody with you?"

"About 15," I said.

He went "Hmmm" again. "Well, don't burn the place down," he said. "I own it."

He drove on off. He never did stop again, though he used to pass by sometimes and wave.

HAROLD L. ICKES

Defends Right To His Papers

There ought to be a well-defined limit within which public officials should be permitted, upon leaving office, to take with them copies of documents which would make it possible for them, at their leisure, to make a written record of their official acts. They should be encouraged to do this. Of course, in no circumstances should any document be taken which would leave a gap in the official records. There can be no doubt of the right to take strictly personal files. There should also be a good deal of leeway in permitting the official to take actual or photostatic copies of official documents.

There has been a good deal of discussion lately in the press about the Morgenthau "diary." I have never seen Mr. Morgenthau's material, but he appears to have taken with him not only strictly personal papers but transcriptions of interviews and dictaphone conversations, as well as copies of official papers. Secretary of the Treasury Snyder has seen fit to demand the return of these papers, seemingly on the theory that they are official documents that belong to the Government. I do not know whether Secretary Snyder's theory is sound or not. It may or it may not be.

IN CONNECTION with the Morgenthau hubbub, someone apparently high in the Department of the Interior made a cowardly anonymous attack in saying that when I left Interior almost a year ago I took with me "records that would fill about 50 filing cases," adding that "the material Ickes took to his home . . . included official data." This quotation is from the story sent out by the United Press, to which certain newspapers gave what my attorney advised me were libelous headlines and leads.

THIS IS an outrageous misstatement of fact. No record was taken by me to which I was not strictly entitled. My files were removed of a Sunday afternoon. Acting Secretary of the Interior Oscar L. Chapman, at my request, was present during this removal. He has said publicly, "To our knowledge, the former Secretary took only personal papers with him." The very fact that this smearing charge was made by someone hidden within a pillow case and white sheet, of itself should serve to discredit the slanderer.

But personalities aside, it seems to me to be in the public interest that responsible officials at the policy-making levels should keep diaries and such records as they might be entitled to. Certainly no one would dispute the right of any public official to remove his strictly personal files when he retires. As for me, I did not take with me any transcriptions of dictaphone records because I had made no such records. The same is true with respect to dictograph records.

IN THE PAST, historians have had to depend largely upon sporadic diaries kept by such men as John Adams and John Quincy Adams and Gideon Welles. Posterity has been fortunate in having these records to which to turn for an accurate appraisement of the important public events with which they dealt. More public officials rather than fewer should keep records so that future historians could weigh one against the other in trying to assay the real truth.

THOMAS L. STOKES

GOP Originated Reciprocal Tariff

WASHINGTON—It is interesting to watch and listen from the galleries of Congress—if you have a consciousness of history—and to wish, for the sake of our own best welfare, that things could be changed back in some ways and fit into a consistent perspective of history.

For example, there was the scene in the House a few days ago.

It was McKinley Day. Every year Republicans in the House observe the birthday of that President by wearing a red carnation. That was his favorite flower. Democrats join in the observance, too, for William McKinley, before he became President, was a distinguished member of the House and by now has become a nonpartisan figure.

REP. JENKINS, Republican, Ohio, made a speech lauding Ohio's martyred President. But there was one thing he did not mention. He omitted the fact that the Republican President was a great advocate of reciprocal-tariff arrangements with other nations to lower trade barriers, a policy that Mr. McKinley had adopted from earlier Republicans, including James G. Blaine, who, as Secretary of State, had originated the reciprocal theory.

In fact, the Republican party invented the reciprocal tariff formula and once took great pride in it.

The inconsistency of history was dramatized there in the person of Rep. Jenkins lauding William McKinley.

For the Ohio Congressman has introduced a resolution requesting the President to postpone any further negotiations for adjustment of tariffs under the reciprocal trade program until further study. For some time now the State Department has been holding public hearings preliminary to further negotiations.

IN OTHER WORDS, Mr. Jenkins would stop this whole procedure. He is a member of the Ways and Means Committee, now Republican controlled, which has before it a number of bills and resolutions to suspend or call off the reciprocal tariff program which, in its present form, was devised by Secretary of State Hull, a Democrat.

In his last speech at Buffalo, where he was assassinated, President McKinley urged promotion of reciprocal trade arrangements with other nations. That was in 1901. No one has ever put the case better than did Mr. McKinley when he said:

"A system which provides a mutual exchange of commodities is manifestly essential to the continued and healthful growth of our export trade. We must not repose in fancied security that we can forever sell everything and buy little or nothing.

"IF SUCH a thing were possible, it would not be best for us or for those with whom we shall deal. We should take from our customers such of their products as we can use without harm to our industries and labor. Reciprocity is the mutual outgrowth of our wonderful industrial development under the domestic policy now firmly established."

Mr. Jenkins did not mention the reciprocal tariff at all the other day. But two other Republicans, both wearing red carnations, in prior speeches viciously attacked the program now being carried out by the State Department, which is a practical development of the McKinley idea. One of them, Rep. Gavin, New York, urged passage of the Jenkins resolution. The other was Rep. Kearney, New York. Neither mentioned William McKinley.

The Republican party is being inconsistent, of course, with recent policy, though it has its dissenters. For, on three successive occasions during its last tenure of power in the 20's it put tariff-raising laws through Congress under the old log-rolling system that the reciprocal tariff now has supplanted. As a party, likewise, it has fought the reciprocal tariff program, though with dissenters who have supported it.

MOST ECONOMISTS agree that a high tariff policy was wrong after World War I and is just as wrong today. Before, other nations built up their tariff walls against us in retaliation, free trade among nations was stifled, and we went through that era of nationalism that contributed to World War II.

The reciprocal tariff policy is one on which Republicans might go back to the "good old days" of William McKinley.

If so, that red carnation will have to become a sort of red badge of courage—as well as consistency —to defy all those local special interests which are pushing the Republican party so hard now.

MEET CHIEF JENKINS!

He Always Wanted To Be a Policeman

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

Herbert Turner Jenkins can't remember the time when he didn't want to be a policeman and for today and part of Wednesday he will take a double-barreled crack at holding down the top job on two forces—City-County Chief.

Jenkins, brown-eyed, prematurely gray-haired, 15-year man on the city force, moved into the office of Chief of the County Police three weeks ago and Monday night, at the direction of the Mayor and City Council, he assumed the duties of Chief of City Police. He expects to take the oath of office at the City Hall this morning and tender his resignation at the County Courthouse Wednesday afternoon.

"I can't remember a time when I didn't want to be a policeman," the 39-year-old officer said Monday afternoon. "My grandfather, Jasper W. Jenkins, was a deputy sheriff in DeKalb County. And my father, Gordon A. Jenkins, was on the force here in Atlanta until 1932—a year after I went to work there. It's the only work I ever wanted to do—in my blood, I guess."

Young Herbert was a rookie patrolman in West End when his father was killed on a motorcycle in 1932. He progressed from patrolman to various jobs in the department, serving as Chief M. A. Hornsby's secretary and working closely with him for many years. Prior to that time he was assigned to the Mayor's office and served as driver for James L. Key.

"I've held every job in the department except that of detective and chief," Jenkins said and then halted himself to join in the general laughter in his living room, where his wife and two sons and a couple of friends from the department had gathered following his appointment. "Well, up to now, that is," he amended.

Although detective work doesn't particularly appeal to him—his wife, the former Miss Margie Mason, of Centerville, an avid Raymond Chandler fan, is the "detective" in the family—Chief Jenkins has worked on nearly every famous murder case investigated since he's been with the department, more recently the Heinz slaying and the "bath-house murder."

The Jenkins children, accustomed ho having "daddy either asleep or at work," are hoping he will arrange his hours to allow more jaunts to their grandparents' farm at Centerville, for that is practically the only recreation the Chief allows himself.

He is fond of hunting and fishing with his boys, Herbert, Jr., 15, a student at Marist, and Jimmy, 11, a student at Joe Brown Junior High, but has had little time for it. When he is at home he helps Jimmy with his spelling and the boys regularly look forward to Friday nights when they can man the radio car with their father until midnight.

Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins grew up within a few miles of each other but did not meet until they were grown up. A cousin of Mrs. Jenkins arranged their meeting on a double-date and they were married shortly afterward. The simple white frame house they built nine years ago at 1146 Cahaba Dr., S. W., is crammed with family interests—Mrs. Jenkins' murder mysteries ("I drive Herbert crazy trying to get him to help me solve them!"), the piano Jimmy hates to practice on, young Herbert's record-player and swing records and the handsome set of encyclopedia the Chief studies regularly.

Since high school Jenkins has systematically continued his own education with night school courses and reading at home, particularly law, the city code and now biographies. He got interested in U. S. Presidents when he learned Calvin Coolidge solved a police strike in Boston in 1918 and he is now carefully boning up on the lives of all of them.

"I started with George Washington and I've gotten as far as Abraham Lincoln," he reported with a grin.

$1 FEE

of Macon, Fifty-First District, said in speaking for the measure.

It would be mandatory for every citizen to appear before the County Board of Registrars and demonstrate whether he can read and write portions of the State Constitution, Weaver said. The educational requirement in the new bill is the same as now exists, but the new measure simply enforces educational provisions, Weaver asserted.

Weaver said the $1 registration fee would be paid into the county treasury to defray expenses of making up the registration lists. The judge of the Superior Court would appoint members of the Board of Registrars and would fix their terms of office and their salaries. At present, the County Commissioners appoint the Registrars, and their salary is limited to $2 a day, which Weaver said is insufficient.

The registration law would be applicable only to the general election, since the Democratic primary is being divorced from State regulations, Weaver pointed out. The Democratic Executive Committee could prepare its own list of voters from the general election list, however.

The measure would abolish Fulton County's permanent registration list, Weaver said, in answering questions from Fulton Reps. Cicero Kendrick and Paul Etheridge.

The Fulton Solons, who were able to amend the White Primary Bill so as to protect Fulton's permanent registration system, said they would attempt to amend the registration measure so as to exempt Fulton County.

Rep. Ben Cheek, of Franklin, asked if the counties couldn't bear the expense of the registration, instead of imposing a fee on the people. Some aged persons are unable to pay fees, he added.

Miss Frances Blackmon, secretary of the Georgia League of Women Voters, labeled the registration fee as a "poll tax." She said the League opposed restoration of the "poll tax," and also was against placing a burden on the voters by forcing them to register biennially.

Weaver said the registration fee is not a poll tax.

"However," Weaver remarked, "I would favor re-enactment of the poll tax and letting the counties, instead of the state, have these funds."

Hearings on new tax measures will be held Feb. 11, the House Ways and Means Committee decided Monday afternoon.

The hearing on a proposed sales tax will be held in the Supreme Court Chambers. It will be followed immediately by a hearing on a proposed soft drink tax.

The tax bills were introduced to try to raise funds to finance the proposed $38,000,000 State services expansion.

At its session Monday morning, the House decided to slow down on a spending program. It deferred action for two weeks on a proposal to raise the minimum salaries of attendants at the Milledgeville State Hospital. The proposal would cost $300,000, for which a new appropriation would be needed in addition to the already approved $38,000,000 fund bill.

The House passed, 118 to 42, a bill designed "to take the post of State Revenue Commissioner out of politics." It bans the appointment of anyone as Revenue Commissioner who has held a political job for 12 months preceding his proposed appointment. It also prohibits a Revenue Commissioner from running for a political job or being appointed to a political job for 12 months after his term expires.

Says Winecoff Refused To Buy Fire Equipment

A former assistant chief of the Atlanta Fire Department, now representing a fire extinguisher company, testified in Fulton Superior Court Monday that the engineer of the Winecoff Hotel told him no money would be spent on the property until the OPA raised its ceiling rates on rooms.

The witness, Paul Netherland, said he received this answer when he tried to interest Charles E. Huff in buying fire extinguishers for the hotel.

Judge Bond Almand is hearing two petitions, one for removal of attachments on the Winecoff asked by attorneys for Mrs. Annie Lee Irwin, former owner of the hotel, and the other for a receivership, asked by relatives of 23 victims of the Dec. 7 fire through their attorney, Allen Post. They have sued for more than $1,000,000 damages.

Post offered an affidavit by D. W. Brosnan, chief of the Albany Fire Department, saying outside fire escapes at the Winecoff would have saved many lives.

For Mrs. Irwin, Atty. William G. Grant introduced evidence to show that Mrs. Irwin could not be present at the hearing because of injuries sustained in an accident in Arizona last month. She is confined in a hospital at Mesa, Ariz.

Grant contends that as owner of the hotel Mrs. Irwin had no liability for the fire. The hotel was leased in 1915 for a period lasting until 1956, he said, and Mrs. Irwin bought the reversionary interest in the property in 1943.

The hotel was in exclusive possession of the lessee, the Winecoff Hotel Company, and Mrs. Irwin had no right to enter the building for the purpose of inspection, he continued. His client maintains that liability for the fire which took 119 lives rests not with her, but with the lessee.

Does Stomach Gas and Bloat Make You Feel Miserable?

If so, here is how you may get blessed relief in freeing your stomach from this nervous distress. It works this way:

Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

'No', Taft Tells Truman On Powers Extension

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—(AP)—President Truman asked Congress Monday to continue his wartime powers to allocate any materials—that is, determine how they shall be shared in an emergency.

Sen. Taft, Republican, Ohio, immediately said "No." He contended this grant of authority would be too sweeping.

The President also asked continuance of his authority to ration sugar and to impose certain import and export controls. Taft, chairman of the Senate Republican Steering Committee, agreed to this.

Mr. Truman's requests were contained in a message recommending the retention for another year of certain authorities contained in the "Second War Powers Act" of 1942 and the abandonment of others. The act is scheduled to expire March 31.

Most of the controls to be abandoned are no longer being used anyway. The principal control still in effect which Mr. Truman tabbed for elimination is the one governing the amount of inventory (goods on hand) which producers and dealers may maintain. It was designed to curb hoarding, but officials see little danger of that now with price controls removed.

Here is the recommendation that drew Taft's potent opposition:

"Because of the distortions and uncertainties generated by war conditions, we may encounter a nationa' emergency that we do not now foresee. The extension of Title III (priority and allocation powers) should provide for allocation authority in a national emergency of this kind, but only if there is a declaration by the President that such a national emergency has arisen. Although I do not anticipate that such an emergency will occur, it is imperative that the government should have the power, during the remainder of the reconversion period, to deal with major unforeseen contingencies of this character."

The President did not say just what he had in mind, but apparently it was the possibility of a strike emergency. Orders were issued during the soft coal strike last December for the allocation of coal, gas and electricity.

"I am in favor of continuing the controls on sugar and maybe controls over some other commodities if they can be shown to be necessary," Taft told a reporter. "But I won't go along with any grant of powers to meet 'a national emergency that we do not now foresee.'"

Taft said the Republican majority plans to handle the continuance of controls on sugar and other items in individual bills dealing with each one, rather than in a general measure.

Mr. Truman had nothing to say on that procedure, but he did urge that whatever Congress does, it do before the March 31 deadline. Perhaps with last Summer's OPA fight in mind, he wrote:

"It is unsettling, both for business and for the general public, to be obliged to wait until the last possible moment for decision by the Congress on emergency legislation."

March 31, incidentally, was the deadline set by John L. Lewis when he ordered the striking coal miners back to work in December.

The Senate and House leaders of both parties conferred with Mr. Truman at the White House before the message was delivered at noon. It was discussed there, along with other matters. Sen. Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, the Senate President, called it a "congenial meeting" but gave no details.

quested to state their position by letter, petition or brief."

Several Negro leaders had asked to be heard in opposition to the bill.

Harris' scoffing was in reply to charges by his political opposition, who said the White Primary Bill would permit organization of a State-wide political machine as strong as the Cracker Party which ruled Augusta and Richmond County for many years. Harris lost his seat in the State Legislature only when the whole party was defeated at the polls.

"I'm not trying to be a dictator, I don't want to be a dictator," Harris said. "Gov. Talmadge asked me to help him on the white primary when he became ill last summer and then later I helped his son. I am not employed by anyone and I am paying my own hotel bills."

Harris commented that he never saw anything in his Bible saying "the lowly Nazarene advocated social equality and I don't think there's anything un-Christian about my attitude."

He jovially commented on his own local political beating. "We got licked then but we won't get licked next time," he said.

"I have to stand up every day and take it from the newspapers with their most damnable cartoons. So I can't help paying my respects when I can to Ohio Jim Cox and the Atlanta Journal."

He then went on to say that he did not become "the darkest, meanest politician until I opposed Ellis Arnall's move to run for Governor again." However, he continued, "my hide is thick. I've seen most of the folks around the State Capitol all come and go and I'll still be hanging around when most are gone."

Also speaking for the white primary was Emory Travis, of Riverdale, who called the White Primary Bill "the only protection for the Negroes and the white people of Georgia."

Opponents of the bill will have their say today and Thursday. The proponents of the bill will be heard again on Wednesday.

A delegation of 24 Carroll Countians appeared as the first witnesses before the Committee. They were introduced by Rep. Willis Smith, of that county, and their spokesman was Dr. O. W. Roberts, of Carrollton.

"The 2,620 white voters of Carroll County want a white primary," Dr. Roberts said. "We know the white man is the Negro's best friend on earth. The white primary is best for the Negro as well as the white man."

"Do you want this white primary bill?" Sen. J. H. Woodall, Woodland, Twenty-fifth District, asked the physician.

"Yes," he replied.

Harris was questioned frequently and duelled verbally with members of the Committee over portions of his bill.

After Harris had said the Democratic Party could not expel any white democrat from its membership, Sen. R. G. Daniell, Sr., of Metter, 49th District, asked him about a resolution passed at the last State Democratic Convention in Macon concerning State officials who declined to remove Mrs. Helen Douglas Mankin's name from the general election ballot in the Fifth District Congressional race.

"Didn't that rule those officials out of the party?" Daniell asked.

"It did not," Harris replied. "I read the newspaper accounts, but the resolution just said that they should follow the mandates of the party."

"I'm not talking about the newspaper accounts," Daniell shot back. "I was sitting within 20 feet of you when that resolution was introduced."

Daniell then said he was aware that some had said the Special Judiciary Committee is stacked against the white primary.

"That didn't come from this side," Harris replied. "But I realize that such reports made some of the friends of the white primary jittery."

"It didn't make me jittery, it just made me mad," Daniell, who deserbed himself as favoring a white primary, said.

Harris went on to explain that he has the utmost confidence in the integrity of the Committee.

Harris, in replies to many questions, continually asserted that the rules of the Democratic party in the white primary measure were taken verbatim from the Georgia Code. He said that all legal regulations for primaries which are being removed from the statute books are incorporated in the party rules.

"While the State cannot adopt a party, the party can adopt the laws of the State in its rules," Harris declared.

Harris parried questions from Sen. Everett Milican, Atlanta, 52d District, who asked if repeal of the primary laws did not repeal also the laws regarding the general election. Harris said no and declared it only repealed those portions of State laws affecting the primaries.

Earlier, during the Senate session, a Talmadge spokesman, Sen. Spence Grayson, Savannah, First District, spoke in praise of the Special Judiciary Committee and denied reports circulated throughout political circles and in the press that the Talmadge forces would seek to recommit the White Primary Bill to another committee.

According to the reports, Talmadge forces had considered the public hearings only delaying tactics and wished the White Primary Bill transferred to the State of Republic Committee, which is dominated by Talmadge supporters.

"I would not want to reflect on the Committee (Special Judiciary) or show distrust," Grayson said. "I have no objections to the hearings."

Jewish Agency leaders now conferring with British Cabinet Ministers in London were expected to discuss the ultimatum Tuesday.

Both the Jewish Agency and Vaad Leumi were summoned for an extraordinary meeting here Wednesday.

British authorities closed the Palestine frontier to incoming British subjects at noon Monday.

Gruner's American Sister Plans Flight to His Side

LANCASTER, Pa., Feb. 3—(UP) — Mrs. Helen Friedman, American sister of a condemned Jewish underground member, made arrangements Monday to fly to Palestine to carry a personal plea to British authorities on her brother's behalf.

Dov Bela Gruner, her brother, was sentenced to hang for complicity in a terrorist attack on a police station but refused to sign a petition for a new trial.

"I have pleaded with my brother to sign an appeal," Mrs. Friedman said. "I believe him innocent and am sure his actions are due to bitterness caused by the way his trial was conducted."

Avoid Primary Hearings, Christian Council Advised

Repercussions of the white primary issue were heard at a meeting of the Atlanta Christian Council Monday when W. Stokeley Northcutt, Atlanta attorney, who lives in College Park, opposed a suggestion by the Rev. Marshall Nelms, Pastor of the Capitol Avenue Baptist Church, that the Council atend the Senate hearings on the bil.

Northcutt, who identified himself as a former law partner of Gov. Herman Talmadge and a close friend of Lt.-Gov. M. E. Thompson, said the Christian Council should in no way try to influence any action of the General Assembly. He insisted it is a political matter concerning which men of religious faith should acquire all possible knowledge, yet not interfere; he himself intimated his preference for a substitute bill.

A motion was carried suggesting the matter be referred to the Council's Civic Committee. No meeting of this committee, of which Dr. Louie D. Newton is chairman, has been scheduled as yet.

Police Probe Doraville Blast

Cause of the flash fire and explosion which ripped through the new DeKalb State Bank at Doraville Monday shortly after L. A. Baird, Cashier, opened the vault is being investigated, bank officials said.

It was speculated that the explosion was the result of gas seeping into the vault from an outside pipe leak. Baird was enveloped by a wall of flame which rushed out of the vault about five minutes after he opened it to get the money out for the day's business.

Baird was painfully burned on his face and hands. The force of the blast tore Venetian blinds off two front windows.

No money was damaged.

Song Sells Not For Song---$15,000

Bob Davis, of 2010 Palifox Rd., N. E., 20-year-old University of Georgia student, had cause to keep repeating the name of one of his songs to himself Monday.

"Wake Pounding Heart" is the song—and Bob's heart is pounding in a strangely dreamish fashion.

A representative of a nationally-known record concern called him Monday morning to offer him $15,000 for the initial pressing of one of four songs he has written. The songs, written by Bob and sung by Don Duckworth over three local radio stations Sunday, went to New York with the record company representative Monday and Bob expects to follow this weekend.

However, he said, if the Revenue Department will deposit tax money in treasury accounts without handing checks to the Treasury, or if it will send cash to the Treasury Department, money will become available for operation of essential State services.

State Auditor B. E. Thrasher estimated recently the State had only enough funds to operate until the end of February.

Hamilton said if the Revenue Department adopted one or the other alternatives proposed, it would be unnecessary to bring mandamus action. However, he continued, Talmadge may elect to force the litigation to compel recognition of Redwine as the legally-appointed claimant to the title of Revenue Commissioner.

A rival Revenue Commissioner was appointed by Georgia's other claimant of the governorship, Lt.-Gov. M. E. Thompson.

Seek Additional Bids On Clark's Hill Dam

The Army Corps of Engineers has called for bids on Feb. 14 for the east embankment of the Clark's Hill Dam, on the Savannah River above Augusta. They already have let contracts for the west embankment and the diversion channel.

The Engineers announced they are breaking up plans for the main concrete dam and soon will call for bids on these contracts.

The Company asked Mrs. Edna Meitz, 43, who once put handles on cups as an employee of the pottery firm, if she knew a minute when she saw one. She replied she did.

While court and counsel clocked her, Mrs. Meitz looked out a window and called "time" when she thought a minute had expired.

The "minute" had lasted only 14 seconds.

Mrs. Beyer took the same test. Her "minute" ran 82 seconds.

Finally, Bert V. Nunneley, attorney for the Company, asked wearily:

"How late is your honor going to run this."

Snapped Judge Picard:

"I may run until midnight. I'm just oiling up."

A few moments later, however, he recessed the hearing until Tuesday, when additional Company witnesses are scheduled to be called.

LOUELLA PARSONS REPORTS:

Crain in Film Version Of 'The Glass Menagerie'

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 3—(INS)—Charlie Feldman went down to Palm Springs over the weekend and made a deal with Darryl Zanuck to borrow Jeanne Crain for "The Glass Menagerie," Tennessee Williams' famous play. Far be it from me to hint that Charlie won her in a croquet game—but funnier things have happened on that famous Zanuck court. This will be made after the birth of Jeanne's baby.

Who will play the Laurette Taylor role is still a question. I have an idea it will be Ethel Barrymore.

Rex Harrison's assignment to "Foxes of Harrow" at Twentieth will delay his trip back to England. Bill Bacher will produce this colorful adventure about old New Orleans and John Stahl will direct it.

After the way the reviewers went for his startling camera technique in directing "Lady in the Lake" you can bet that Robert Montgomery won't be satisfied in the future with the old routine formulas.

He's going to Vienna in May to arrange to shoot "The Big Two" against the locale of the actual play. Bob wants to give his first movie from MGM an authentic newsreel quality.

All Grace Moore's friends have read her last interview printed in a Copenhagen newspaper with tears. In part she said:

"I love life, and I love to meet new people. More than anything in the world I want a new opera where the chief actress doesn't die. That's one of the reasons I love 'Louise,' she doesn't die."

Michael Powell and Emeric Pressburger will put "The Red Shoe" into production in England. It's taken from the Hans Christian Andersen story of a peasant girl who gets red shoes and when she puts them on, can't stop dancing.

A 19-year-old girl, Moire Shearer, from the Sadler's Wells ballet, will be the star.

The film version of Charles Dickens' "Great Expectations" has been so successful in London that J. Arthur Rank plans to do "Oliver Twist" with Anthony Wager, a young, blond Cockney, as Oliver.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Viveca Lindfors cabled that she missed being on the tragic Grace Moore plane by a mere half hour.

Eleanor and Brian Aherne celebrated their first wedding anniversary at their Indio ranch and he gifted her with a diamond heart matching the one he gave her for a wedding gift.

When they tore down the old prison that has stood at Istanbul, Turkey, since the Middle Ages, the officials were amazed at the great number of Hollywood pin-up pictures in the cells—particularly of Ann Sheridan.

Speaking of pin-ups, the boys in a military convalescent ward elected Susan Peters their favorite "chin-up girl."

Jackie Coogan is headed for London the first week in April for personal appearances. His bride goes along, of course.

Alice Faye and Phil Harris want to take a South American vacation soon.

Cary Grant took Karan Gaylord, former Goldwyn girl, out to dinner a couple of times in Mexico City. But his heart still belongs to Betty Hensel.

Bobbe Fidler Sutton writes from Mexico that Ty Power piloted her and John over the biggest volcano crater South of the border.

Ann Todd's 6-year-old daughter, Francesca, arrives in New York tomorrow. Ann considers the name Francesca good luck. The play which brought her fame on the stage was "Francesca" and she was Francesca in "The Seventh Veil."

Faye Emerson and Elliott Roosevelt are collaborating on a new book which will probably give Westbrook Pegler material for a whole new column.

Simple Elegance

Hats by John Frederics and Hattie Carnegie, pictured, indicate the newest trends in millinery. A total absence of feathers and flowers marks many of the hats of these and other topflight designers as definitely new. Ribbon veiling and drapery assume full responsibility for the trim and always feminine, often dramatic are the results. Above, left, Hattie Carnegie uses a fine black shantung straw for this off-face brimmed hat. She scallops the brim in wide undulations, then drapes cinnamon colored satin ribbon over and under the brim at each side. Right, a woven straw of rich brown was chosen by John Frederics for this hat. He loops two shades of chiffon around the crown, fastens them with a jeweled clasp at one side and allows them to cascade over one shoulder. The drapery is sufficiently long to cross the shoulders, if desired, or it may fall in the back. Below: "City Sailor" is the fitting name of this small hat by Carnegie. Of white milan, it fits the head snugly, staying without benefit of hat pin, has a rolling crown, small rolled brim and is banded with black satin ribbon. A heavy mesh veiling, much in evidence throughout the better millinery collections is used on this hat. Simple elegance exemplified by these hats is the newest look in millinery.

ELIZABETH WOODWARD SAYS:

Don't Get Too Impatient If Things Don't Go Right

You get impatient with the way things are going! You just have to do something about it. So you lie awake nights plotting plots and figuring angles. There must be something you can do to make things come out even. You're bound and determined to DO SOMETHING.

But there are lots of things you can't do anything about. And there's no use bucking that fact. You'd just better sit quietly with your hands folded in your lap . . . and let things take care of themselves. For there's nothing you can or should do about them!

FIVE SIXES

Your girlfriend Jean has taken to going out with an old boyfriend of yours. You've known him all your life . . . and for the life of you, you can't see what he sees in Jean. You've known her too well and you've watched her with other boys. Your old pal is going to get hurt . . . you know it. Now what can you do to protect him?

That's something you can't do! And knowing him all your life doesn't give you the right to protect him anyhow. Just because you knew him first doesn't mean that he belongs to you. His dates with Jean are none of your business. Let him get hurt . . . if he wants to!

The gang of boys your gang of girls has run around with since you were all nine . . . has of a sudden started taking out girls you don't know. The gang is dissolving into little pieces . . . and you girls are feeling sunk. You're out on the end of a limb. What can you do to get them back and make them toe the mark?

You can't do anything. You can tie up a bunch of boys and keep them your own forever. If those boys are going to wander afield, you girls had better get started doing the very same thing!

You're up against your father . . . and he's a stone wall. He won't let you go to dances unless you go with your older brother. Your brother's pal usually goes along, and you two are that way about each other. But what can you do to go alone with the pal?

Nothing . . . until your father gives the "go" signal. You go with this boy, even though your brother's along for company. Why not be satisfied with that for a while longer?

You went over to sit with the baby of some friends of yours. They were going out with the most attractive man. They introduced you . . . and you fell hard. When they came home, the friend drove you to your house. You can't think of anybody else now. What can you do to get a date with him?

Nothing!

You go out with Tim on dates . . . and have a marvelous time together. But will he pay any attention to you around school? Not Tim. What can you do to make him show that he knows you're alive?

Nothing!

YOU'RE NOT IN THE DRIVER'S SEAT

No matter how much you want to DO SOMETHING about any of these things . . . there's nothing you can do. Some things are out of your hands entirely. Whatever you do . . . you'll stick your foot in it. So you'd better keep your feet tucked under your chair!

Mrs. Arthur I. Harris served the last cup of coffee to Cpl. J. W. Payne, U. S. Army, of Hemp, Ga., at the USO-TA Lounge before it closed last week. Of the millions of cups of coffee served to 1,671,583 men in uniform in the Lounge, Cpl. Payne, who "downed his share" on previous occasions, found the last cup the best of all. As Chairman of the USO Council Transit Service Committee, Mrs. Harris recruited the hundreds of volunteers who contributed so much to the service that made the Atlanta Lounge one of the finest in the nation.

SALLY FORTH Says:

Duchess of Marlborough Visits Atlanta Next Week

Next Tuesday Atlanta is to be honored by the presence of a prominent titled English lady, the Duchess of Marlborough, who is coming to visit the local Red Cross chapter. Mrs. John Appleby, one of the Red Cross directors, has invited a small group of friends to luncheon with the Duchess at 1 o'clock at the Piedmont Driving Club on the day of her arrival, and those fortunate enough to be included in the guest list are awaiting the visit of this charming visitor with eager anticipation.

The Duchess of Marlborough is the former Hon. Mary Cadogan, daughter of the late Viscount Chelsea and Lady Meux. Her marriage to John Albert Edward William Spencer-Churchill, tenth Duke of Marlborough, son of the ninth Duke of Marlborough, and the former Consuelo Vanderbilt, of New York, was a royal affair taking place in 1920.

The Duke and Duchess have two sons and three daughters and reside at Blenheim Palace, Woodstock, Oxon, England.

CAMELLIAS FLOWN FROM DAVIS GARDENS

Jane (Mrs. Alfred B.) Davis, that popular former Atlantan who has resided since her marriage at Atlantic Beach, Fla., has become so proficient in the art of growing camellias that she is winning prizes right and left. Recently she and Al entered 18 specimens in the Jacksonville Camellia Show and won 14 ribbons—eight blue, four red, and two white!

Al is just as enthusiastic about horticulture as is Jane. In the Jacksonville show he won the sweepstakes in a division in the men's section, and Jane walked off with the same honors in the women's section. In addition, both Jane and Al were runners-up for the sweepstakes in the whole section for men and women. And they've only been growing these exquisite blossoms for three years!

It will be a special treat for Jane's legion of friends here to behold, among the beautiful entries at the Camellia Show today at the Georgian Terrace, some specimens from the Davis gardens in Florida, which were sent by air mail, special delivery.

Gardner Sees More Specialized Grid Game

No radical changes in the game as played last season will be brought about by the seven rules changes made by the NCAA Rules Committee, according to George Gardner, Secretary of the Southeastern Conference Officials Association.

"I haven't had an opportunity as yet to study the technicalities involved," Gardner said, "but from what appeared in the papers, I believe spectators will hardly notice the new changes.

"Of course, there are some things which will make for a more open game and the rule involving substitutions will tend to make the college game more specialized than ever before."

The two most important of the seven changes are: (1) the allowing of one substitution by each team any time during the game while the watch is running if the ball is dead, and (2) the banning of any shift which similates a regular play, commonly called the running shift.

The substitution rule means, according to Gardner, that a team may send in one player after any scrimmage play without taking time out, so long as the ball is put back into play within the required 25 seconds. This doesn't affect the present rule which allows a coach to send in as many substitutions as he desires whenever the clock is not running.

"I think the new regulations regarding the offensive shift will help clear up the confusion which existed last season involving several teams," Gardner said. "The banning of running shifts is in keeping with the spirit of the game. It will be a big help to officials."

Tech and Georgia fans had opportunities to watch such shifts in action last year when Navy played in Atlanta and North Carolina met the Bulldogs in the Sugar Bowl game.

Both of these teams employed shifts resembling offensive plays which frequently drew opponents offsides.

In fact, Bobby Dodd attributed the fact that his team was almost defeated by the Navy shift.

"We knew they had it," he said, "and, therefore, our linemen were not charging on the snap of the ball on their regular plays. Instead, they waited for the shift and the Navy linemen got the jump on them."

Georgia likewise knew North Carolina was going to use the shift and some of the coaches said their linemen's knowledge of the fact made them slow in charging.

Spectators will hail banning of such a shift, as they have no great desire to see one team jump offisdes and be penalized all afternoon.

Less Noticeable The other changes in the rules, while important, will be even less noticed by fans. One will cause the moving of the inbounds line almost three yards nearer the center of the field from the present 15 yards from the sidelines. This will make possible better short side offensive maneuvers while still retaining enough room on the other side for wide end sweeps.

Another change eliminates an offensive team trying to run a ball across the goal line after it has been blocked on an attempted placement for an extra point. Hereafter, when a team tries a placement that is the only way the extra point can be made. The high schools have had this rule for some time.

Another change involves illegal use of the hands and the softening of shoulder and thigh pads, designed to prevent injuries. Still another says that after a ball has been kicked across the scrimmage line penalities for all fouls except unnecessary roughness and illegal use of the hands will be inflicted from the point of the foul.

Finally, the rules committee changed the distance of the penalty in disqualification from half the distance to the goal to 15 yards.

This was done in order not to place too severe a burden on a team for the conduct of one player.

Most of the new rules already are being used by professional and high school teams. They will go a long way towards standardizing the game.

Homers by Gearhart Seen in Polo Grounds

By WILLIAM TUCKER,
United Press Sports Writer.

The Polo Grounds, always a dead cinch for pull hitters to plop home runs into either the right or left-field stands at the foul-line, may come up with a man tailor-made to drop four-basers into both extremities of the playing field this

In fact, says the Giant's chief scout, Hank Deberry, Lloyd Gearhart should come nearer a Ruthian performance in Horace Stoneham's ball lot than the legendary Clint Hartung who also will don a Polo Grounds uniform this season.

Deberry flatly predicts that Gearhart should hit 35 homers a season in the Polo Grounds. This might seem like a rash guess since Gearhart hit only eight times for the circuit in the Southern Association last year.

"But Deberry told me that Southern League parks were altogether different from the Polo Grounds," said Gearhart, who is loafing in Atlanta preparatory to joining the Giants' Spring training camp. "He said that I hit seven balls in one four-game series at New Orleans that would have been homers in the Polo Grounds. At New Orleans, they were nearly all outs."

A natural left-hander as to throwing and eating, Gearhart took his stance at the plate as a right-hander when he started playing ball on the Dayton, O., sandlots—because all the other kids did. He never broke himself of the habit and he developed a knack of hitting to all fields.

Because he is a southpaw at heart, although he bats as a rightie, Gearhart puts terrific wrist action into his swings. The ball, as a result goes dead to the corner in either right or left field. They are high, arching blows and a lot of them can be fielded in Southern Association parks. But no outfielder has yet developed the trick of climbing into the Polo Grounds stands for a pop fly.

North Fulton To Battle Hapeville; Decatur Faces College Park in NGIC

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

North Fulton and Decatur, both in the thick of the NGIC pre-tournament basketball title race, face rugged tests tonight in their feature games against Hapeville and College Park, respectively.

Claude Kirkpatrick's Bulldogs will be seeking revenge from Harlan Harris' Rams, 33-30, upset victors over Decatur in their last meeting, when they square off at 8:30 p. m. on the Decatur court. The Decatur lassies, with a safe lead in the girls' league, engage the College Park sextet at 7:30.

North Fulton, pacing the loop with a 10-1 mark since Athens handed Canton its first loss, 36-22, last week, may be hard pressed by in-and-out Hapeville at North Fulton. The girls' teams of the two schools will vie in the 7:30 opener.

W. A. Skelton, Commercial High's league leading scorer who has 175 points to date, will be in action when O. E. Owen's Typists tangle with Fulton in a girls' and boys' twin bill, starting at 7:30 on the Fulton court.

Bill Kirkland's Marist Cadets, still flushed from their prime 30-29 upset of Jordan Saturday, will vie with GMA's "A" and "B" teams at GMA today, starting at 4:45 p. m.

Russell High's "A" and "B" quintets journey to West Fulton for a pair of jousts, beginning at 4 o'clock, the same time set for the start of the Druid Hills-Lithonia double-header at Druid Hills. Washington Seminary will clash with Sacred Heart at 4:30 at the YWCA.

Of special interest and importance is the battle in Columbus tonight between Jordan and Tech High, loser of only one GIAA game. The Smithies barely nipped the Red Jackets in a torrid battle here recently.

McCarthy Receptive To Baseball Offer

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—(UP)—Like an old fire horse, Joe McCarthy, the greatest winning pilot in the history of baseball, sniffed smoke again today and admitted he would like to be back in action.

'Cats Defeat 'Bama, 48-37

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Feb. 3—The Kentucky Wildcats turned on the heat in the second half here tonight for a 48-37 victory over the University of Alabama, which had won its 14 previous games.

The Wildcats, heavily favored in pre-game predictions, were hard pressed during the entire first half and went ahead 20 seconds before its close on Wah Wah Jones' goal from under the basket.

Two quick throws by Ken Rollins and another pair by Jones shortly after the second half opened gave the Wildcats a commanding lead and they weathered a brief Alabama rally to win going away.

The victory was Kentucky's twenty-first in 22 starts, and it ended the longest consecutive winning streak in Alabama's history.

Father John McDonald, of Marist, in making the announcement Monday, said the varsity game will start at 8:30 p. m. with a preliminary tilt, yet to be scheduled, beginning at 7:30. The Augusta school, recently admitted to the GIAA, will engage Tech High at Henry Grady court on Friday night.

Rockmart, Blue Ridge Fives Enter Tourney

The Rockmart Goodyears, winners of 17 out of 18 games so far this season, and the crack Blue Ridge Athletic Club were the latest teams to enter the State Open basketball tournament.

Rockmart had previously entered another tournament, but withdrew in order to take a shot at the State crown now held by Fort Benning's Doughboys.

The entry of Blue Ridge and Rockmart brought the number of teams already entered to 21. Entries close Wednesday and play will get under way Saturday afternoon at Sports Arena.

Legislature Tackles Sports 'Fix'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

A pugnacious Legislator asked the State of Georgia today to put the chill on athletic "fixers" with sentences of one to five years in the penitentiary.

Rep. M. M. (Mugsy) Smith, of Fulton County, a halfback on Oglethorpe's legendary team of 1925 and later a semi-pro baseball player, offered the bill prohibiting gambling at sports events, and penalizing attempted bribery.

Gambling would be punished as a misdemeanor. Bribing or attempted bribing of any player "with intent to influence such person to lose the game," would be subject to a flat prison sentence.

"Why," exclaimed Smith, "a gambler will pay a $5,000 fine and just laugh at you. This bill would put 'em in the clink for from one to five years—with no option of a fine."

Smith said he also intended to discourage petty gambling at ball parks, where cash customers bet on balls, strikes and base hits, and to dampen the enthusiasm of old grads who wave $50 bills in hotel lobbies and offers to bet their bankrolls on dear Ol' Siwash.

Public hearings will be held on the bill, Smith said, adding it would be supported by Earl Mann, President of the Atlanta Baseball Club; Wally Butts, Athletic Director at the University of Georgia; and Bobby Dodd, Head Coach at Georgia Tech.

Meanwhile, the Georgia House of Representatives voted unanimously for a committee to investigate the possibility of State-supported athletic scholarships.

Waving a newspaper clipping, quoting Athletic Director W. A. Alexander, of Georgia Tech, Rep. Sam Welch, of Cobb County, said the veteran coach suggested that the best way to end commercialization of college football would be for the State to support it by taxation.

Welch said his original resolution had called for a committee to inquire into possibility of State scholarships for students proficient in band music. The idea of similar scholarships for athletes, he explained, "was a sort of after-thought."

Explained Welch: "I'm not trying to get into any arguments about that commercialization business."

Alexander, in an interview at Kerrville, Texas, where he was meeting with the NCAA Football Rules Committee, advocated State aid for "the huge costs" of modern collegiate football, so that gate receipts could be reduced to a nominal amount.

Welch's resolution instructs the committee "to inquire into the feasibility of the State taking over and operating athletic programs, particularly the game of football."

Tech Five Plays Bulldogs Tonight

By JIMMY WALL

Georgia Tech's Jackets, reeling from two successive Conference losses over the weekend that shoved them down to seventh place in the league standings, find themselves facing Georgia's cagers Tuesday night in Athens.

With only Wes Paxson, leading scorer, able to hit consistently, the Jackets are in a slump that has cost them four of the last six games. Georgia lost to Tennessee last week for their seventh loss of the season against three wins, while Tech's disastrous weekend pulled their won-lost record to seven victories and six losses.

Paxson, All-Conference forward in 1944, has continued his pace-setting scoring despite the Tech defeats, and he now leads the team scoring with 186 points in 14 games. The Jacksonville lad, who likes to hit his shots from back of the foul circle, has cracked away at the basket at an average of 13.3 points per game.

Although missing three games while the team was in the North, Frank Broyles has made a total of 114 points in his 11 games to date to grab the runner-up position behind Paxson. Broyles has made an average of 10.4 points per game.

Georgia has dropped eight of eleven starts this season, with five losses and two wins in the Conference.

The Bulldogs rely heavily on Forwards Gene Lorendo and Bob Healey and Guard Morgan Harvill.

The Georgia B team, with a win and a loss on its record, meets GMC in the 6:30 preliminary. Only Georgia students and faculty will be admitted.

Probable starting line-ups:

GEORGIA	Pos.	GA. TECH
Lorendo	F	Paxson
Healey	F	Nolan
Griffeth	C	Haines

Harvill	G	Broyles

Veteran Dog Handler Attends Albany Trials

By JACK TROY

ALBANY, Feb. 3—Bob Armstrong, of Fitzgerald, one-time owner and handler of the immortal Mary Montrose, was handling and winning in the field with English setters as long ago as 1880.

Armstrong, who admits to being between 80 and 90, was on hand for the start of the Southern Amateur Field Trial Club's tournament of noses. The famous owner-handler had no dogs to run, but he bemoaned the fact that he couldn't ride a horse in the gallery due to a companion having to return to Fitzgerald.

"But don't worry Mon," said Armstrong, the thick burrs still rich in his voice, "I'll be back Wednesday for the Regional. I'll put aside this cane and ride. I'd like to see some good bird work."

Son of a famous English owner and handler, Armstrong first entered the bird-dog game as a challenger of his father's reputation.

"I wanted to beat me father, Edward, and believe me, Laddy, I did," Armstrong pointed out. "I started young in the game. Soon after I was able to walk and put on my own pants."

The true English setter strain is traced back to the Armstrong family who owned the origina' champions.

J. Pierpont Morgan, I, brought young Armstrong to America. And in the American field the English lad was a sensational handler. Armstrong acquired Mary Montrose, the brilliant pointer whose running weight was 53 pounds and in the same season, won e National Championship at Grand Junction and the Bench Championship in Madison Square Garden.

Ted Williams Signs Contract

BOSTON, Feb. 3 — (AP) — Ted Williams, Boston Red Sox slugger, today signed his 1947 contract—reputedly calling for between $60,000 and $70,000.

General Manager Eddie Collins, of the American League champions, said Williams "wrote his own ticket."

Ted himself refused to divulge just what he was getting, but did tell newsmen "it's the most money I ever got."

Carl Tidwells Cop Father-Son Pin Meet

The father and son combination of Carl Tidwell, Sr. and Jr., won the city duckpin doubles championship Saturday night at the Lucky Strike Alleys with a 10-game total of 1,307, a new Southeastern record for the event.

Tidwell Sr. paced all bowlers for the evening with a five-game 682 total including games of 136, 127, 126, 153 and 140. Tidwell Jr. added a big 625 total to this to amass the winning score.

"'twas a cinch, Mom," the boys said.

Man Held After St. Simon's Foray

BRUNSWICK, Feb. 3—(AP)—A shapely 24-year-old blonde was free on bond Monday, but her twice-wounded male companion was still in jail after a pistol duel with police in a cottage on St. Simon's Island, Glynn County Police Chief Russell B. Henderson reported.

Chief Henderson said the wounded man was Buddy Wilson, 29, alias Erwin M. Enzer, an ex-convict, and the woman was Mrs. Ruby Cullifer, 24, of Brunswick.

Henderson said he was attempting to arrest the couple on a larceny warrant sworn to by Mrs. Cullifer's husband, Dan Cullifer, when the shooting started. The warrant, said Henderson, accused the couple of taking a $3,500 diamond ring.

LOST 27 LBS. FROM INDIGESTION; REGAINS IT BY TAKING RETONGA

MR. OBIE NEVELS

"I Can Eat Anything Now From Hamburgers On Up or Down." Declares Well-Known Home Owner. Sleeplessness and Sluggish Elimination Also Promptly Relieved, He States. Tells About His Case.

"Years of distress from nervous indigestion pulled me down from 157 to 130 pounds and I hardly seemed to be stronger than a kitten, but thanks to Retonga I have regained my lost twenty-seven pounds, feel fine and am on the go all the time," declares Mr. J. Obie Nevels, well-known home owner of Elba, Ala., and a member of the Masonic Lodge of that city. "And," added Mr. Nevels, "my gratitude for the relief Retonga brought me is so great that I lose no opportunity to tell people how it put me back on my feet, as the saying goes.

"My appetite disappeared and I dreaded forcing down any food because almost always it meant more suffering. After eating I felt bloated and my food seemed like a heavy lump in my stomach. When I went to bed gas pressure usually was so strong up against my chest that I couldn't take a deep breath. Nearly every night I was in and out of bed four or five times, unable to sleep, and I had to take harsh laxatives until I felt like a walking bottle of medicine. I felt so badly weakened I sometimes thought I might never be any good again.

"I never knew of such relief as Retonga brought me. I feel as strong and active as before my distress began. I now eat anything, from hamburgers 'up or down,' I sleep the whole night through and feel fine all the time. Constipation also is relieved. If anybody wants to know about Retonga, just write me. I have told numerous friends how it relieved me and many have thanked me for it. I can never say enough good about Retonga."

Retonga is a purely herbal stomachic medicine combined with liberal quantities of Vitamin B-1 and is intended to relieve distress due to insufficient flow of digestive juices in the stomach, loss of appetite, Vitamin B-1 deficiency and constipation. Accept no substitute. Retonga may be obtained at Mayis Cut-Rate Drug Store, 112 Whitehall St.—(adv.)

Forget 'Dip,' Avoid Slump, Reserve Asks

The Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta Monday told the public if it would spend less time counting the days to the next depression and more working toward a solution of industrial relations problems, "any serious slump in business might be postponed indefinitely."

The Bank was taking a fore-and-aft look at 1946 and 1947 and warning that unless the present free economy practices reasonable self control, it might easily find itself subjected to external control—reasonable or unreasonable.

Mostly the Bank's economists concerned themselves with what happened in the first post-war year when the country reverted from a controlled economy to free enterprise, noting that "the United States moved into its first year of peace possessing all the ingredients of a more or less sustained boom."

And pertinently they also noted when the economy had been unchained by OPA, the consumer began dragging forth his own shackles to keep prices from climbing sky-high.

After observing that the U. S. moved into the post-war era with an income "probably running at 170 billion dollars a year," they noted that the rate of savings declined.

At the end of the war the United States was saving 27 percent of its income, but by the last quarter of 1946 it was saving only 9 per cent.

Then came the bank's warning: "If business should shelve or abandon its plans for capital expansion because of rising costs, supply problems . . . and uncertainties, then the time when production could begin to satisfy consumer demands would be indefinitely postponed.

"Purchasing power would be dissipated in bidding up the prices of commodities in short supply and the ensuing collapse of consumer buying could easily precipitate a retrenchment in production.

"At the heart of this potential sequence of events lies the problem of labor-management relations. Unless these two groups find some way of co-operating in a common task . . . the outlook will be far from bright. . . . Only a failure to solve the problems of industrial relations, which are really problems of human relations, threatens to mar the outlook. If all parties to our common economic welfare would bend their efforts in this direction, rather than spending their time counting the days until the next depression strikes, any serious slump in business might be indefinitely postponed."
